GIVE CONTESTED GAME TO DALLAS

THREE MINNESOTA TOWNS THREATENED BY FOREST FIRES

ST. PAUL, Aug. 18.—Twelve people have been killed, several hundred made homeless and all roads blocked and communication cut off, except for one telephone line, according to a report made to the governor's office today by Herman E. Samuelson, the governor's executive clerk, who is at a point 13 miles north of Biwabik.

DULUTH, Aug. 18.—Swinging from the southwest to the northwest early today, a 15-mile wind was fanning forest fires in the Kelsey, Cotton, White Face district placing the three towns in a more precarious position than yesterday.

The shift in the wind was regarded by forest rangers as anything but satisfactory and Adjutant General Walter F. Rhinow ordered all available men of the Duluth tank corps to Kelsey for relief work and if necessary to aid in fighting the flames.

It is estimated more than 300 fires are burning in the forest sections of the state. The majority of them are in peat bogs, but the tinder like condition of the woods makes even the smallest fire a potential menace.

DULUTH, MINN., Aug. 18.—Fears that the death toll from the forest fires ranging in northern Minnesota would go beyond the reported total of 12 when additional advices are received today from the flame-swept areas, were expressed this morning by scores of refugees who are arriving here hourly from all sections of the north woods.

While 400 Minnesota national guardsmen under Adjutant General W. F. Rhinow continued today the work of succoring the refugees, more than 2,000 forest rangers redoubled their efforts in fighting the flames which have already destroyed three small towns, Cotton, Central Lakes and White Face.

The fate of a score of other small settlements scattered over St. Louis and Lake counties north of here hung on the weather today. Only rain or a calm day can save these places.

The first ray of hope of preventing further serious loss was received at district headquarters of the state forestry service shortly after midnight when rangers at Kelsey, 50 miles north of here, the center of the worst blazes, reported the situation much improved with the wind subsiding and a heavy dew.

Similar advices were received from the vicinity of Fairbanks and Eveleth.

New fires were reported early today in several sections, including one at Cronigen and another at Deerwood Lineb and Sherwin, north of Two Harbors, near Lake Superior. A set word that flames were becoming menacing while ten miles from Cloquet Peat fires were showing increased signs of activity.

Mindful of the 1918 holocaust in northern Minnesota when more than 400 persons lost their lives, hundreds of persons abandoned their homes, livestock and in fact everything they owned. The main thought of the women and children was to reach safety. Most of the men remained to aid the fire fighters.

Last night and today all main roads leading to Duluth, Eveith and other northern villages were crowded with fleeing women and children.

Chief among the scores directing this work was Governor J. A. O. Preus of Minnesota, who came here yesterday to make plans for speeding up coal shipments from the northwest. The governor after ordering out five companies of guardsmen and six airplanes, stayed up most of the night arranging for cots, food and other comforts at the Duluth armory for the arrivals from the fire country.

CONTINUE TASK OF SEEKING SOLUTION OF GERMAN TANGLE

By Associated Press

PARIS, Aug. 18.—The reparations commission today continued its task of seeking a solution of the Franco-German tangle, but a final decision is not expected for about a week.

A large section of French opinion criticizes what is termed the futility of the commission's methods, for instances the decision, it is understood, to have taken to send a delegation to Berlin to hear what Germany has to say.

It is remarked that Germany explained her position when she applied for a moratorium in July.

Le Journal announces flatly that if Germany defaults in her payments or the commission fails in its task and grants a respite to the reich without sufficient guarantees the occupation of the Ruhr region will be ordered within 48 hours.

On the other hand, there are consistent reports that efforts are being made to bring about a settlement directly between France and Germany. L'Oeuvre even says Premier Poincare himself has at last been won over to this opinion and that the "independent action" of which he has frequently spoken recently might not by any means be menacing for Germany, but quite to the contrary.

INDIANA ATTACKS CRUDE OIL RATES; COMPLAINT FILED

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The Indiana state chamber of commerce filed a general complaint today with the I. C. C. attacking as too high the entire structure of freight rates maintained to that state on petroleum products moving from refining points in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Without attempting to prescribe a level of rates which Indiana consumers might consider reasonable, the complaint declared that the railroad freight rates on the products named to nearly all points in Illinois and many points in the Mississippi valley were much lower proportionately than the rates charged on Indiana traffic.

COMMITTEE WILL WORK FOR COUNTY BRANCH HOSPITALS

ELECTRA, Aug. 18.—E. R. Brown, J. M. Hemby and Guy McNeely were appointed by the local chamber of commerce and agriculture as an organization committee for the purpose of creating interest in the proposed bond issue of $150,000 to be used in erecting branch county hospitals in Electra, Iowa Park and Burkburnett.

Electra physicians declare that in 1920 more than 3,000 cases were sent from Electra to a hospital or should have been sent if one had been available. Because of the crowded condition of the county hospital, it is urged that this number of cases amply warrants a branch hospital here.

LIEUTENANT LARSEN IS READY TO RESUME FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 18.—Lieutenant Westside T. Larsen is preparing today to leave for San Francisco on the third lap of his air flight which started at San Antonio, Texas on Wednesday, when he covered the distance to San Diego in 11 hours elapsed time. He covered the distance from Los Angeles to San Diego, a little more than 100 miles, yesterday in less than one hour.

HOT BREEZELESS NIGHT FOLLOWED BY CLOUDY SKIES

A hot breezeless night was followed by clouded skies Friday morning but no rain fell and shortly before noon the clouds had practically all disappeared.

During the night the temperature only fell to the 86 degree mark, making it one of the hottest nights since the siege of hot days the last part of July and the first of August.

The mercury was chased beyond the 100 degree mark Thursday afternoon and the maximum temperature recorded was 102.

Friday morning agents on railroad lines reported clouded skies and none indicated by their report that rain was imminent.

DAUGHERTY SAYS KLAN MENACE TO U. S. GOVERNMENT

STOCKTON, CAL., Aug. 18.—Thomas Lee Woolwine, district attorney of Los Angeles county and a candidate for the democratic gubernatorial nomination, addressing a political gathering here last night made the Ku Klux Klan in California a campaign issue. Mr. Woolwine denounced the klan as an "un-American organization."

Mr. Woolwine also read excerpts from a letter received by him from United States Attorney General Daugherty in which the latter stamped the klan as a "distinct menace to American government."

Frisco People Go To Work in Furs And Overcoats

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 18.—While eastern cities swattered San Francisco cooled by a steady trade wind from the Pacific, came to work this morning in overcoats and furs. Occasionally a straw hat or filmy repe de chine could be seen, but as a rule heavier garments of winter predominated. The highest point reached here by the mercury yesterday was 66 while the lowest was 54. At Los Angeles 78 degrees was the maximum. At San Diego the thermometer registered 72. The mercury climbed to 90 at Seattle.

ALL NIGHT SEARCH FOR CONVICTS WAS WITHOUT SUCCESS

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Aug. 18.—An all-night search by posses formed by state, county and city officers and members of the local post of the American Legion, had failed early today to pick up the trail of four convicts who late yesterday escaped from the South Dakota penitentiary here, kidnapped Warden George T. Jameson and severely wounded Deputy Warden Arthur Muchow.

Muchow was reported recovering from knife wounds received when he attempted to quiet a commotion that occurred yesterday afternoon in the prison tailor shop. The convicts, Henry Coffee, Joe Poremun, Joe Teal and J. B. King assaulted the deputy and when Warden Jameson, who heard the cries of Muchow, rushed to the shop he was held up at the point of knives and forced to lead the way for the quartet through the prison gates.

OFFICERS CAPTURE A COMPLETE STILL IN TAYLOR COUNTY

ABILENE, Aug. 18.—A copper still, with two barrels of mash were found on the Callahan-Taylor county line Wednesday night by officers of Callahan county, working with four Texas rangers. A man, aged 52, and whose name would not be given out, was taken into custody, and as all the apparatus was just a few feet within the Taylor county line, the prisoners and still were brought to Abilene.

Officers here state that this is the most complete still ever found in Taylor county and that a small quantity of whiskey found with it seems to be of the highest grade. The whiskey is being retained for evidence, while the mash was destroyed.

VOTE IS UNANIMOUS AFTER AFFIDAVITS IN CASE ARE PRESENTED

HOUSTON, Aug. 18.—Texas League club owners in executive session here today awarded to the Dallas club the game played at Wichita Falls August 12, which Wichita Falls won four to three. The vote was unanimous after affidavits had been presented.

The hearing of evidence against the Spudders and the subsequent vote on the topic was conducted behind closed doors.

The unusual part of the procedure is that the game was taken from the hands of one club and deposited in the hands of another. The custom has been in cases of sustained protests to toss the game completely out of the records.

The adoption of the following resolution is what brought about the unusual judgment of completely switching the result of the August 12 game:

"The Texas league declares the game of Saturday, August 12 forfeited to Dallas on evidence satisfactorily adduced and proved by chemical analysis that the balls on which the protest is based have absorbed cerosote. The league believes that the occurrence is one calling for summary action and the severest penalty in the event that the identity of the perpetrator can be discovered and the president is instructed to use every effort in his power to discover the guilty party or parties. The league goes on record as regarding such practices as reprehensible and calls on the Wichita Falls club to affix the guilt."

The league authorized the statement that it does not regard as responsible the owners or managers of the Wichita Falls club but that the club erred in not using greater effort to produce evidence to sustain its general denial of guilt of the charges.

WARREN STONE SAYS NEW YORK MEETING WILL SETTLE STRIKE

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—The strike of railway craft unions will be settled here, Warren S. Stone of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers, declared today as the committee of five rail brotherhoods finished several informal conferences before meeting the rail executives to continue their work of mediation.

"The strike must be settled," he continued, "and it must be settled right here at these meetings. Conditions over the country demand that a settlement be made at once and we are striving that it can be done soon. The five brotherhoods are ready to do anything possible to bring present conditions to an end."

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Belief that no definite agreement for settlement of the shop crafts strike would be reached today was expressed by Warren S. Stone, head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers shortly before 1 o'clock on leaving the conference between brotherhood men and executives.

After having attended the session for two hours Mr Stone left for the uptown hotel where shop crafts leaders are quartered for a conference. He said he did not expect to return before 3 o'clock.

Mr. Stone said no definite agreement had been reached so far and he believed the conference would have to be extended beyond today.

The labor leader professed himself still optimistic about the outcome.

Mr. Stone explained that whatever plan was presented would have to be referred by both sides to their constituents.

The general impression prevailing around the conference chamber at the noon recess was that the conferees had come down to cases and that some definite program was under discussion. In this connection were recalled dispatches from Washington quoting Senator Watson of Indiana, as outlining a proposal for settlement of the seniority question which he said he had gleaned over the long distance phone.

This proposal which could not be confirmed here, was that loyal employes should head the seniority list with strikers second and new employes third—as many of the recruits to be retained as possible.

W. L. Mapother of the Louisville & Nashville a member of the executive committee, left the chamber, refusing point blank to discuss any information concerning the conference which Senator Watson adviser to President Harding in the rail strike, said he had obtained by telephone.

HOPEFUL OF AN EARLY SETTLEMENT OF STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—President Harding was told by Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, one of his advisers in the rail strike, today that long distance telephone conversation with brotherhood chiefs and representatives of the railroad executives in New York had disclosed both sides "hopeful of a settlement of the rail strike at today's meeting."

Discussion of the troublesome seniority issue was declared by the Indiana senator to be based on a plan which roughly would provide:

First. That the men who did not go on strike go to the head of the list in seniority.

Second. That the employes who walked out July 1 or later, be accorded seniority status second to the men who remained at work.

Third. That the new men taken on during the strike be given a seniority ranking below the other two groups and be retained in employment by the railroads wherever possible.

Senator Watson said that T. DeWitt Cuyler, chairman of the association of railway executives and leader of the executives in the New York conference had expressed himself over the telephone early today as "quite hopeful." The senator did not disclose who he talked with among the brotherhood chiefs.

White house officials notified senate and house leaders that the president had made arrangements to address congress shortly after noon.

Senator Watson had another long distance telephone conversation with Mr Cuyler after the brotherhoods and executive committee went into conference today and was informed by Mr Cuyler, he said, that the prospects for settlement were not so bright as they had appeared prior to the conference.

TROOP 2 OF THE BOY SCOUTS WILL BE REORGANIZED

The reorganization of Troop 2 of the Boy Scouts of America will take place at the First M. E. church, south at 7:30 p. m. Friday. Assistant Scoutmaster Will McClure will be in charge during the absence of a regular scoutmaster. Troop 2 disbanded several months ago for the summer.

Among other phases of scouting for the fall and winter the local troops are planning a big day at the Texas-Oklahoma fair to be held here in the fall. Plans are being made to make this one of the greatest scout days ever held here.

AMERICAN TRAGEDIENNE DIES OF HEART FAILURE

LONDON, Aug. 18.—Genevieve Ward, famous American tragedienne, died of heart failure today at her home in Mampstead.

SUMMARY OF STRIKE SITUATION

By Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Transportation blockades caused by train crew walkouts cleared away today as railroad heads and leaders of the train service unions met again in New York in another parley for peace in the shopmen's strike.

While their leaders were shouldering the issues of the striking shop crafts, members of the transportation brotherhoods who quit their posts returned to their jobs and stranded traffic was moving again.

In the far west where the tieup was most effective conditions improved rapidly and railroad officials announced resumption of almost normal transportation. The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, Union Pacific, Western Pacific and Southern Pacific reported striking trainmen back on their jobs and trains making schedule time.

The walkout of crews on the Louisville and Nashville at Corbin, Ky., ended and switchmen in the L. and N. yards at Montgomery, Ala., returned to work. Yard crews and other employes of the Missouri Pacific, who struck at Van Buren, Ark., agreed to go back to work today. Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul brotherhood men ended the tieup at Channing, Mich.

Disorders incident to the rail strike continued. Three workers employed in railroad shops at Cincinnati were attacked and several beaten. A roundhouse employe of the Texas and Pacific railroad at Dallas, Texas, was injured by a bomb which shattered the roof of the building. A tear bomb used by police in dispersing a crowd of striking shopmen at Topeka, Kan., routed the police also. A third attempt to dynamite tracks of the Louisville and Nashville in Alabama occurred at Grace near Birmingham.

Shots were exchanged between workers and strikers at the Colton, Cal., plant of the Pacific Fruit Express. The fight started when rocks were thrown at workers as they emerged from the plants. Eight strikers were arrested.

Thirty five of seventy five striking maintenance of way workmen on the Santa Fe at Cajon Pass, Cal., applied for transportation back to their jobs after they went on strike. Most of the men were Mexicans. They said they had been told by striking shopmen that orders for a walkout had been issued to track workers.

LA FOLLETTE IS NOT EXPECTED TO BE IN TARIFF CONFERENCE

COULD NOT BE COUNTED ON TO SUPPORT BILL HE FOUGHT IN SENATE.

EXPECT TO PASS BILL BY END OF THE WEEK

McCumber, Smoot, Fordney, Green and Longworth Likely to Be Conferees.

By MARK SULLIVAN

National Political Correspondent of the New York Evening Post and Wichita Daily Times

(Copyright, 1922, by the New York Evening Post.)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The tariff bill will be passed by the senate at the end of [illegible]. Thereafter the question will be: How soon will final action take place? How soon will the tariff be on the books as a law? How soon will we be paying the duties it imposes? How soon will we be paying high prices which the democrats say it will bring about? And how soon will we be enjoying the beginning of that prosperity which the republicans say it will bring about?

SULLIVAN.

The answer to these questions lies wholly with the republicans. The democrats are through with the tariff. They have made their case and they confidently believe that with this case properly presented to the public through their campaign orators they will be able to make great gains in the congressional elections this year and wholly win the presidential and congressional elections of two years hence.

If the republicans had a united leadership we might be able to see the answer to these questions. But the republicans have no such leadership. In the lack of it the answers will be determined by a tug-of-war between the senate and the house. Early next week the bill will go into what is called "conference." This means that three members of the senate will sit down with three members of the house and engage in a prolonged effort to smooth out the differences between the bill as the house passed it and the bill as the senate passed it.

The house conferees normally would be Chairman J. W. Fordney of the ways and means committee, Congressman Green of Iowa and Congressman Longworth of Ohio. The senate conferees normally would be the three leading men on the senate finance committee, namely, McCumber of North Dakota, Smoot of Utah and LaFollette of Wisconsin.

There is some question whether LaFollette will be put on the conference committee. For one reason he is absent in Wisconsin campaigning for renomination and reelection. For another reason there is doubt of his orthodoxy—doubt of his loyalty to the senate finance committee's tariff bill and, in a broader way, doubt of his orthodoxy as a republican. It would seem ironical for a senator who is on record in violent opposition to the bill to be put on the senate committee, which is supposed to insist on the integrity of the senate version.

In a broad way, in addition to LaFollette's relation to the conference committee, there is a serious disposition on the part of the republican leaders to declare LaFollette an outlaw to exile him, banish him, excommunicate him, maroon him on a socialist island. The disposition is to point out that he is not an orthodox republican, that in his campaign for a return to the senate he has the support of socialists and is not running as an avowed republican.

May Put Out LaFollette

There is a disposition not only to keep LaFollette off the conference committee in the immediate future but also in the rearrangement of all the committees of the next session of the senate to regard LaFollette as a third party man and to reduce his committee assignments accordingly. All that lies ahead in another story. By some device or other LaFollette will be deprived of the opportunity to change the tariff bill in the coming

HARDING BEFORE CONGRESS WITH REVIEW OF STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—President Harding in an address to congress today on the industrial situation declared that the right of employes and employers alike to conduct their business must be recognized and he also deplored what he termed "warfare on the unions wages and conditions."

The president declared a national investigation for constructive recommendations as to the conduct of the coal industry to be imperative and recommended a government commission to advise as to fair of labor."

Immediate legislation to establish temporarily a "national coal agency" with necessary capital to purchase, sell and distribute coal also was urged by the executive.

Stating that the Esch-Cummins act in establishing the railroad labor board was inadequate, being with little or no power to enforce its decisions, the president recommended action to make the board's decisions "enforceable and effective against carriers and employers alike."

Other legislative recommendations were for "better protection of aliens and enforcement of their treaty rights," a measure to give federal courts jurisdiction in protecting aliens.

In discussing the coal situation the president referred to what he termed the "shocking crime at Herrin, which so recently shamed and horrified the country" and added the incident was "butchery of human beings wrought in madness."

Other than the amendment to the Esch-Cummins law to make the railroad board's decisions enforceable the president did not recommend any legislation to deal immediately with the railroad strike.

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—President Harding today told congress and the nation that he was resolved to use all the power of the government to maintain transportation and to maintain the right of men to work."

In asking for coal legislation the president said that the administration had sought earnestly "to restrain profiteering and to secure the rightful distribution" of coal but was without legal power to control prices.

The president in an address to congress in which he recommended specific legislation designed to cure the nation's industrial ills, declared with emphasis that the right of employes alike to establish their methods of conducting business, to choose their employment and to determine with each other must be recognized.

Government "by law must and will be sustained," the president said, "no matter what clouds may gather, no matter what storms may ensue, no matter what hardships may attend or what sacrifice may be necessary."

Stating that sympathetic railroad strikes had developed and impaired interstate commerce seriously the president said that trains deserted in the western desert had revealed the cruelty and contempt for law on the part of some railway employes who have conspired to paralyze transportation."

Shocking Lawlessness

Asserting that the striking unions in some cases had not held their forces to law observance, Mr. Harding said "there is a state of lawlessness shocking to every conception of American law and order" and announced his intention to invoke laws civil and criminal, forbidding conspiracies hindering interstate commerce and requiring safety in railway service.

In declaring positively for the right of men to work the president said that in both the coal and railroad strikes this right had been "denied by assault and violence" and in some cases winked at by local authorities. He added:

It is fair to say that the great mass of organized workmen do not approve when they seem helpless to hinder. These conditions cannot remain in free American."

"Surely the threatening conditions must impress the congress and the country," the president went on, "that no body of men whether limited in number and responsible for railway management or powerful in numbers and the necessary forces in railroad operation shall be permitted to choose a course which so imperils public welfare."

The president concluded his address at 1:04 o'clock after speaking 40 minutes.

TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS OUTLINING STRIKE SITUATION

By Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The text of President Harding's address to congress on the industrial situation was as follows:

Gentlemen of the congress:

It is manifestly my duty to bring to your attention the industrial situation which confronts the country. The situation growing out of the prevailing railway and coal mining strikes is so serious, so menacing to the nation's welfare that I should be remiss if I failed frankly to lay the matter before you and at the same time acquaint you and the whole people with such efforts as the executive branch of the government has made by the voluntary exercise of its good offices to effect a settlement.

The suspension of the coal industry dates back to last April 1 when the working agreement between mine operators and the United Mine Workers came to an end. Anticipating that expiration of contract which was negotiated with the government's sanction in 1920 the present administration sought as early as last October, conferences between the operators and miners in order to facilitate either a new or extended agreement in order to avoid any suspension of production when April 1 arrived. At that time the mine workers declined to confer, though the operators were agreeable, the mine workers excusing their declination on the ground that the union officials could have no authority to negotiate until after their annual convention.

A short time prior to the expiration of the working agreement the mine workers invited a conference with the operators in the central competitive field covering the states of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois and in spite of the union declination of the government's informal suggestion for the conference five months before the government informally but sincerely commended the conference but it was declined by certain groups of operators, and the coal mining controversy ended in the strike of April 1. It was instantly made nation-wide so far as the organized mine workers could control and included many districts in the bituminous field where there was neither grievance nor dispute and effected a complete tieup of the production in the anthracite field.

Overtures for Settlement.

It is to be noted that when the suspension began large stocks of coal were on hand mined at wages higher than those paid during the war there was only the busing impelled by necessity and there was a belief that coal must yield to the post-war readjustment. When the stocks on hand began to reach such diminution as to menace industry and hinder transportation approximately June 1 overtures were initiated by the government in the hope of expediting settlement. None of these availed. Individual and district tenders of settlement on the part of operators in some instances appeals for settlement—were wholly invalidating. The dominant groups among the operators were insistent on having district agreements the dominant mine workers were demanding a nation wide settlement. The government being without authority to enforce a strike settlement in the coal industry could only volunteer its good offices in finding a way of adjustment.

Accordingly a conference of the coal operators associations and the general and district officials of the United Mine Workers was called to meet in Washington on July 1. The designation of representation was left to the officials of the various organizations, and there was nation-wide representation except for the non-union fields of the country. Because of the joint meeting I expressed the deep concern of the country and invited them to meet at a conference table and end the disputes between them. The conference did not develop even a hope. The operators were asking for their district or territorial conferences; the workers demanded national settlement on the old basis. Appraising correctly the hopelessness of the situation I again invited both operators and workers to meet with me, and tendered a means of settlement so justly inspired that it was difficult to see how any one believing in industrial peace and justice too all concerned could reject it. In substance, it called on the operators to open their mines, on the mine workers to resume work at the same pay and under the same working conditions as prevailed at the time the strike began. In turn the government was to create at once a coal commission or two of them, if preferred by all parties to the dispute so that one could deal with the bituminous situation the other with the problems in the anthracite field. Among the commissioners were to be representatives of the operators, representatives of the mine workers and outstanding, disinterested and able representatives of the American public. The commission was to be instructed to direct its first inquiry to the rate of wage to be paid for the period ending next April 1 and then to enter upon a fact finding inquiry into every phase of the industry and point the way to avoid future suspensions in production. The disputants all indorsed the suggestion of a fact finding commission. The anthracite operators promptly accepted the entire proposal. The mine workers refused to resume work under the arbitration plan. The majority of the bituminous operators filed an acceptance but a considerable minority declined the proposal. Under these circumstances having no authority to demand compliance, the government had no other course than to invite a resumption of production under the rights of all parties to the controversy with assurance of government protection of each and every one in his lawful pursuits. This fact was communicated with the governors of all coal producing states and with invitations, assurances of maintained law and order were promptly given. In some instances concrete proof of effective readiness to protect all men, strikers and non-striking workmen alike, was promptly given. But little or no new production resulted. The simple but significant truth was revealed that except for coal as comes from the districts worked by non-organized miners the country is at the mercy of the United Mine Workers.

Many Appeals Received.

Governors in various states reported that their operators and miners had no dispute and were eager to resume production. District leaders informed me that their workmen were anxious to return to their jobs but that they were not permitted to do so. Hundreds of wives of workmen have addressed

CAMPAIGN TO URGE SCHOOLS TO TEACH FIRE PREVENTION

DESIRE TO EXTEND WORK IN THIS DIRECTION THROUGHOUT STATE.

WILL CARRY THE COURSE INTO THE RURAL SCHOOLS

An Average Of Fifteen Minutes a Week Devoted to Study of Prevention Methods.

AUSTIN, TEXAS, Aug 18—A statewide campaign to enroll Texas cities and towns in the teaching of fire prevention in public schools will be opened in the near future, State Fire Marshall O W Tilley, stated here today Approximately 200 Texas towns already are enrolled in teaching fire prevention courses in their schools, and as a result, it is estimated that approximately $150 000 is saved to citizens of these towns annually in reduced fire insurance rates

More than 360 000 Texas school children received fire prevention training last year it is reported by state fire department officials To obtain the fire prevention course, it is necessary for the mayor of the city or town to apply to the state fire marshall for the course and also for the superintendent of schools to agree to teaching the course

For conducting the course in fire prevention, a three per cent reduction is granted by the state department in the key fire insurance rate in addition to this reduction, such towns are eligible to credit for good fire records. Under the credit plan, a three per cent reduction is granted in the keyrate for each five per cent or fraction thereof less than 55 per cent loss ratio. The maximum reduction under this provision is 15 per cent

The campaign for teaching fire prevention in the schools will be carried over the state by educational workers of the state fire marshalls department Miss Olga Juntger and Miss Anna M Poulson are the educational workers who will conduct the work.

In addition to the campaign to enroll city and towns in the fire prevention work, the course also will be carried into the rural schools The work in the rural schools will be conducted through the county superintendent's office, although no reduction in fire insurance rate is granted for this work. The rural course will be for the purpose of educating rural children in methods of fire prevention for their own protection, Fire Marshall Tilley said.

Through the fire prevention courses, fire drills also are introduced into the schools and are a means of protecting school children against fires Last year a number of school buildings in Texas were destroyed by fire and it is said that the benefit of the drill training was exhibited in such cases

The fire prevention course varies with each class Outlines of the course are sent out to the schools joining in the work. An average of 15 minutes a week is devoted to the study of fire prevention methods. Fire Marshall Tilley reports an unusual amount of interest in fire prevention work among school officials and predicts an increased enrollment in the course this year

GRAND JURY WILL PROBE THE RECENT TRAGEDY AT MINE

By Associated Press.

MARION, ILL., Aug 18—The special grand jury investigation of the Herrin mine massacre which will begin August 28, will be a searching inquiry and every phase of the miners war will be sifted in an effort to "clear the name of Williamson county," States Attorney Dejon Duty told the Associated Press today.

While not revealing the nature of evidence Mr. Duty intimated that material gathered was of a comprehensive nature.

I have a large collection of notes, and Attorney General Brundage has a lot of evidence." Mr. Duty explained, "and before the special grand jury is impanelled we shall compare notes and facts we have gathered. Just how long the inquiry will last I cannot say."

The summons for the grand jury was issued late yesterday by Circuit Judge Hartwell and they will be served by a special deputy instead of Sheriff Melvin Thaxton. Attorney General Brundage or one of his assistants will assist in presenting the evidence to the grand jury, it was explained

The inquisitorial body will investigate the massacre, in which 19 non-union miners were slaughtered June 22 and the riot of the previous day in which three striking union men were fatally wounded.

BIELASKI IS FREE AND ABSOLVED FROM BLAME IN MEXICO

LEAVES MEXICO CITY THURSDAY NIGHT ON RETURN TO THE U. S.

KIDNAPED ON JUNE 24 BY BAND OF MEXICANS

Mexico City Newspapers Charged Bielaski With Having Plotted Abduction.

By Associated Press

MEXICO CITY, Aug 18.—Departure for the United States last night of A. Bruce Bielaski brought to a close an episode which has held public attention for several weeks

Mr. Bielaski, who was war time chief of the American department of justice's investigation bureau, was the central figure in a kidnaping Sunday, June 24, near Cuernavaca and which has since been under investigation by Judge Roberto Quiros of the Cuernavaca court

Colonel Enrique G. Padilla of the Mexican army was drawn into the case because of his alleged attempt to exceed his authority as President Obregon's representative by calling off the pursuit of the kidnapers.

Mexico City newspapers charged Bielaski with having plotted his own abduction.

Mr and Mrs Bielaski accepted the invitation of George T Summerlin, American charge d'affaires, to be his guests at the embassy. This action was interpreted by the Mexican public as an attempt to gain protection for Bielaski and brought further criticism from the Mexican press, which did not know that [illegible] was remaining away from Cuernavaca under express instructions from federal authorities here, who wished to settle a conflict between the state and military officials before allowing him to be examined.

Last Friday he went to Cuernavaca and upon his brief testimony was absolved absolutely from all blame for his abduction, but was requested to remain in Mexico until all points were cleared up This has been done and Mr and Mrs Bielaski left last night for New York, going by way of Brownsville and Houston.. It is believed that he will go to Washington within a short time to give a report of his experiences to the state department.

Although the case has not yet been definitely settled, it is generally believed the court will find it one of ordinary banditry. Colonel Padilla is to come before a court martial.

Dry Agents Cast Gloom Over the N. Y. White Way

NEW YORK Aug 18—Prohibition agents made a tour of the white light district along Broadway early today and decorated the cabarets and midnight clubs with yards of crepe by serving notice that from now on no hip pocket liquor is to be allowed. Proprietors of the jazz palaces were told they would be prosecuted if any patrons were permitted to drink their personally conducted wet goods in their establishments

Cabaret owners declared that this order plus the 1:00 o'clock dancing ban will mean an end of New York's so-called night life They promised to see that the rule was enforced

REVIVE SPECULATION AS RESULT OF OIL INDICATIONS IN THE GULF IN EVIDENCE THE PAST 20 YEARS

WASHINGTON, Aug 18.—A score of years ago a skipper of the British steamer Etolia cruising 200 miles off the Texas coast and with more than a mile of water between the ship's keel and the ocean floor, passed through patches of oil on the surface of the sea.

"The oil appeared to be bubbling up from the sea," said the note in the ship's log, and since that day there runs through the records of the navy hydrographic office repeated reports of such oil signs at sea, suggesting the possibility of subsea oil field that may never yield their treasure of energy to use of mankind.

The Etolia saw the oil smears in 1902 and in the same year the steamer Dunstan in almost the same position "passed through a stream of kerosene oil about 50 feet wide" Four years later the San Jacinto encountered close to the same locality a "layer of crude oil, color dark yellow, very strong odor," and steamed more than five hours at 12 knots before the oil smear was left behind.

Again in 1909 the steamer Comedian at a point close to the position where the San Jacinto picked up the floating field of oil reported a mile wide oil stain "which could be seen bubbling on the surface in three jets"

Through the years that followed reports of oil on the sea's surface have come at frequent intervals The hydrographic office records show 26 such mariners' observations during the last 20 years, some of them from points well north off Cape May, some far out in the Atlantic But the greatest number are clustered in the Gulf of Mexico southeast of the Texas coast in waters ranging from 800 to 900 fathoms in depth

One observation was made about 20 miles off Galveston to 16 fathoms and others from that point out to the spot 300 miles from shore when the bulk of oil float has been noted through the years in an area measuring about 200 miles each way

The navy department experts hazard no guess as to the explanation of these yellow smears on the seas surface Some of the ship masters have assumed that the oil came from sunken wrecks and that seems probable in many isolated cases But there is no explanation of the repeated appearance of oil in the one gulf region unless it comes from a sub-sea gusher spouting a mile beneath the surface.

Foolish Nonsense Is Term Applied To Cupid's Court

HAMMONTON, N. J., Aug. 18.—After a brief session of "cupid's court," the unique plan of the Hammonton Lovers Protective union for alleviating lonesomeness toppled under the stinging blow of the words "foolish nonsense" applied by some who had been considered among its chief proponents

When the court reconvened yesterday there were no crowds eager to hear the pleas of the two "attorneys" for those who would be mated. Not even the jury appeared. Secretary Deiker and Lewis Conley, joint promoters of the plan, gazed forlornly at the papers containing the cases of scores of lonely maidens and ambitious swains

The manager of the theater where the court was held announced that the court must meet in other quarters.

Outstanding among the features of the court's decline and fall was the refusal of Mrs. Helen Long Rodgers to serve longer upon the jury, or in any other capacity with the institution. Her husband objected, she said, after a University of Pennsylvania student had seen her referred to in newspapers as "Miss Rodgers" and had sent her a high voltage proposal of marriage

Further troubles for the promoters came later in the day when charges were made that they had started the lovers cooperation union for personal gain and that they intended to sell the list of names obtained to a matrimonial bureau. They denied the charges.

CALL SPECIAL SESSION OF COURT TO HEAR THE GAINESVILLE CONTEST

GAINESVILLE, TEXAS, Aug 18—District Judge Pearman has called a special session of district court for August 31 to hear the election contest filed by Frank Wankan, defeated aspirant for county attorney

The county democratic executive committee last week ordered the ballots cast at South Muenster thrown out and declared Mr. Wankan the democratic nominee over J. L. Gettys by six votes Gettys appealed to the district court.

COOKE COUNTY FARMER IS FOUND DEAD WITH ROPE AROUND HIS NECK

GAINESVILLE, TEXAS, Aug 18—John Ronson, 62, farmer, living 12 miles west of here, was found dead in his barn yesterday a rope around his neck His son found the body when he went to the barn having been requested to meet his father there

Was Happy and Laddie Boy Has Been Exonerated

NEW YORK, Aug 18—Sleuths of varying degrees of importance, from gimlet-eyed boys to New Jersey police, have run to earth the scandal which for a moment threatened to disturb the republican party. They have determined absolutely and positively, that Laddie Boy, President Harding's dog, is no Lothario but that his brother is a dog who plays with goats

Yesterday it was announced that Laddie Boy's elder son, Happy, was lost There the scandal started Happy belongs to Charles Cofeit of West New York, N. J. Laddie Boy objected to that "eldest son stuff"

The sleuths finally found Happy playing with a herd of goats up along the Palisades He admitted he was only Laddie Boy's black sheep brother

Of course there's a scandal about Happy, brother of the presidential Airedale playing with goats, but what's that to Laddie Boy's redeemed reputation?

RESIGNS AS CONSTABLE AND JOINS THE RANGERS

GAINESVILLE, TEXAS Aug. 18—Charles Corhran, who finished third in the race for sheriff at the July primary, has resigned as constable and accepted a commission in company "D," Texas rangers, under command of Captain W. L. Wright on duty here

A TRUE RAT STORY

Auburntown, Tenn., 6-22-11.
Stearns Electric Paste Co., Chicago.
Dear Sirs. Mr. Robert T. Donnell of Auburntown, Tenn., came in our store the other day and wanted something to kill rats, so I sold him a box Stearns Rat Paste. And he put some paste on six biscuits that night and the next morning he found fifty four big rats. And the second night he put out four more biscuits with paste on them, and the second morning he found seventeen more rats making a total of seventy-one rats in two nights, and there were lots more that he did not find.
This is some big rat tale but, nevertheless, it is so. Just thought would write to let you know that your rat paste is good

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

Flap-Doodle Escapes in Disguise

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

But all they saw was a white-faced monkey.

Nancy and Nick left the Tinky-Winkiers grieving over their town hall, which Flap-Doodle, the mischievous fairy, had turned into a bakeoven, and went on their way.

The Twins were on the Tinky-Winkie Star hunting for Flap-Doodle because he spent most of his time here. He was boss, or king, or president, or something like that.

But since he'd stolen the Fairy Queen's magic wand he'd played so many tricks on his subjects they were all after him. Mind you, he'd even turned his chief councilor into a chocolate rooster!

At last the Twins came to a cave. "Maybe he's in there!" whispered Nancy.

"Maybe!" agreed Nick. So they peeped.

But all they saw was a white-faced monkey hanging by his tail from a stick.

"What are you doing that for?" asked Nancy curiously.

"Oh, just for my complexion," answered the monkey, jumping down. "Who are you?"

"We're Nancy and Nick from the Earth," answered Nick. "And what's your name?"

"I've got 60," answered the monkey, grinning. "Joco Beppo Antonio Poncho Pedro Angelo—"

"We'll call you Jocko," answered Nancy. "One name's enough. Do you happen to know where Flap-Doodle is hiding?"

The monkey scratched his head.

"Flap-Doodle," he repeated. "What does he look like?"

The Twins told him.

"He might look like anything now though," said the monkey. "He can change himself around, you know, if he's got the magic wand."

Suddenly the monkey disappeared, stick and all!

And as he faded from view, the children caught a flash of purple.

"Goodness!" gasped Nancy. "That was Flap-Doodle himself."

HOME BUILDING FEATURES THE MORE RECENT DEVELOPMENTS IN THE GROWTH OF BURKBURNETT

BURKBURNETT, Aug. 18.—Burkburnett is at this time enjoying a healthy growth in the way of home building. Among the recent beautiful residences planned and now in the course of construction is that of Eddie Kline, who is the manager for the Manhattan store; Dr. J. S. Haynes, dentist, and J. M. Williams, proprietor of the Liberty drug store. These three new residences are located in the Ellis addition and while each is of a different design they are models of comfortable home building and reflect artistic tastes of the designers. Each building is being equipped for electricity and sanitary sewerage connections, and contractors on the jobs are all local people.

Regarding beautiful homes in Burkburnett, which have lately been improved, that of Ed Heine's deserves special mention. Mrs. Heine designed the improvements and personally oversaw every little detail that goes to make up a modern home. The lighting was given special attention and each room, the bath, kitchen and dining rooms have their distinctive features resulting in conformity of light given by fixtures producing the best effects as the occasion demanded.

Many other homes are now being planned for Burkburnett and the area of building is now just in its infancy. The light company and the telephone company are showing a willing attitude towards making extensions of their lines for the accommodation of the new home builders. The contractors are bidding low on estimates and the real estate men and land owners are making liberal terms to those who wish to avail themselves of a home and many are taking advantage of this chance to get out of the clutches of the monthly rent bill.

A large number of subpoenas were delivered into the hands of the sheriff Friday morning by the district attorney for witnesses who are being summoned to appear before the grand jury of the 30th district court which convenes Monday morning after a recess of a month.

Fully fifty witnesses have been ordered to report to the grand jury on Monday morning. A large number of cases were not disposed of at the time the recess was taken and since that time many more have arisen which will require the attention of this body.

It is believed that the grand jury will be in session at least two weeks.

SECRET OF A GOOD DISPOSITION

A woman who carefully safeguards her health benefits her disposition. She will be happy and attractive to all. The world unfortunately is filled with sweet women who are unhappy because they are held back from usefulness by troubles so common among them. Fretfulness and nervousness rapidly destroy good dispositions. Sickly, all-worn-out women cannot make happy homes. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a safeguard of women's health. This is clearly proven by the many letters we are continually publishing in this paper, from women who have been restored to health and happiness by its use after years of suffering. Why don't you try it?—adv.

Thomas, Feeder of France During the War, Coming Here

Copyright, 1922 by Public Ledger Company

Now Enlisted in the War to See Labor Well Paid All Over the World

By Wm. Atherton Du Puy

"WHAT sort of man is Lloyd George?" I asked Albert Thomas director of the International Labor Office world official, representative of fifty four nations, the man who is in personal contact with most of the topnotch executives of most of the countries of the world—the man who is coming to be known as the official visitor among the governments that make the map pink and green and blue

The answer he gave me is a master sketch of the British Premier, but it is an indication as well of the character of Mr. Thomas himself—intellectual, incisive, enthusiastic, human, dynamic He said:

"Mr. Lloyd George was at the head of the production of munitions for Great Britain and I occupied the same position in France. We worked in close co-operation during the war We are as he stated in public only the other day very old friends. I need not describe to you his ardent imagination, his spontaneity the individual charm he brings to his friendships There is no more attractive man in the world. All the political trickery to which he is exposed, all the parliamentary and political intrigue in which he is involved, have no influence on his idealism, his feelings for democracy, his instincts of social justice Often have I met him again after a separation The politics of the hour have carried him far from all that interests and absorbs me By this I mean labor questions But I have only to describe to him all that we are doing for his interest to quicken and together we set out in imagination for that mysterious future which is to give the world ever greater peace and justice

"And Premier Poincare, of France," I interjected since Mr Thomas seemed in a happy frame of mind for pen pictures of the great men of the world

"He is a man of reason, the man of facts, said the director, "he has studied and absorbed the contents of his documents. His judgments are guided by lucidity and reason Even in conversation he deals methodically point by point, opposing fact with fact argument with argument He is no dreamer He is not able to jump from one decision to another according to the circumstance of the moment He tries to introduce an element of logic into the course of events But you may well imagine the value of such lucidity to a man preoccupied with international questions M Poincare is a writer, and therefore precise in statement

"You may know Stinnes, of Germany," I suggested

"Stinnes? I met him once in Berlin in May 1920 when he was anxious for conciliation with France He is the business man—in few brief words, a few definite engagements entered into with somewhat feverish haste In conversation, no sign of the great plans that are always in his mind; he keeps them to himself a man of calculations.

"The Russians? Since 1917 I have not been able to get into Russia because they would not have it Our attempts to study labor questions out there failed I have now met them again at Genoa. You ask me what I think of them? I find no change since I last met them They often amuse me. The unsounding volubility is disconcerting, too. They are singularly at home in every sphere of thought They follow their own lines, ever ready with a reply, not always distinguishing clearly between the real and the imaginary their minds reflecting the essentially inorganic elements of Russian life

DECIDEDLY a personality This is one's first impression of Albert Thomas There is surprise that he is so young One remembers that he was Minister of Munitions during the tensest crisis of the war. Since he is now but forty-four, he could not then have been forty It was he who held labor to the task, secured unbroken production Do you remember the infinite number of French seventy fives that were produced, the effectiveness of those work-a-day field pieces, the many thousands of them that the French furnished the American army before we could get into production? Albert Thomas it was who made that possible.

He had been a leader of labor elements in the House of Deputies before that, and an ardent journalist As a youngster he had travelled and studied in many countries by dint of odd jobs won through his outstanding and active mentality He had written a number of sociological books Back of all of which was his birth as the son of a small farmer in the town of Champigny sur Marne, Paris, in 1878

A stocky sprightly person is Albert Thomas more wideawake than anybody else in all the world His eyes are blue, his hair is black and he wears his fringe of raven whiskers silky and pliable and subjected to an inordinate amount of twisting and pulling and winding about his fingers while he talks to you

I started traveling about everywhere almost immediately after the creation of the International Labor Office," he explained. "It was in Paris on January 27, 1920, that I was appointed director On the eighth of February we established the office in London By the months of March and April I set off for Switzerland, the Saar district, Luxemburg Belgium, the Netherlands and Germany

Since then this business of traveling has been uninterrupted There is need, I think, for just that It is difficult to create an international entity, and it is not easy for an international organization to take root in the acid soil of each nation The method of correspondence is inadequate. The most way to establish relations, to elicit decisions, to do things in person. Letters and cables from international institutions simply accumulate in civil service desks and drawers Public administrations are subject every day to urgent demands on the part of Parliaments or of public opinion. There is no way of getting a document out of them or of getting a signature, and that is why I am on the spot

"Thus I have become the Wandering Jew of social politics (The writer knows few men in public life capable of that line.) But then we have also made a real thing of the International Labor Office; a powerful central organization supplemented by five correspondents' offices and various local correspondents—the whole coordinated by these special missions. This is the method by which we have obtained maximum results.

"It would be difficult to tell how many journeys I have made; the series might be described as uninterrupted. London and Paris are constantly being visited. I have already been five or six times in Berlin. The Scandinavian States were visited on the occasion of the meeting of the Government body in Stockholm. From there we undertook a tour in the youthful border states of Russia, Finland, Esthonia, Latvia and Lithuania. We were in Warsaw on the morrow of the armistice between the Bolsheviks and Poles. We have been to Czecho-Slovakia; we have visited Italy three or four times. The only country missing in Western Europe is Spain, and I might now add, Ireland. Now we shall have to penetrate Central Europe, but in this direction our work has been supplemented by that of my Deputy Director, Mr. Butler

"Our way of traveling is with a secretary and a typewriter. Pencil and machine are hard at work during the whole of those interminable railway journeys. Contact with Geneva is maintained through our correspondents in the different countries.

"In every country or town we first visit the heads of Governments, sometimes even the heads of States. We get in touch with actual sources of information and action. Above all we visit labor ministries, almost every grade of official, I am inclined to say, from the minister to the general secretary or individual director, who provide us with speedy and reliable replies from the technical point of view.

"Then there are visits to employers' organizations, which sometimes arrange semi-official receptions, dinners or meetings with committees—such being the way of employers.

"As for workers, it is speeches they want; public expositions of the work of the International Labor Office, appeals to labor sympathy for obtaining reforms

"These journeys, conceived in a truly international spirit, undertaken with the intention of developing the European desire for peace and of always finding just and practical solutions, undoubtedly help to establish and keep up relations between the countries of Europe, whose complexity and divisions are a matter of astonishment to the world of America. International co-operation is a new thing in the world, a stupendously difficult thing. It runs counter to the old manner of intercourse It requires exposition, demonstration. This we try constantly to furnish"

"CAN you give me concrete examples," I asked, "of international situations into which these wanderings have thrust you?"

"On the occasion of one journey," he replied, "I was requested to bear messages of conciliation and amity between the trade unions and labor parties of Poland and Czecho-Slovakia. I assisted personally in removing grudges, in allaying suspicion.

"When I was in Finland and Sweden, friends of the International Labor Office in both countries were very excited against each other over the Aland Islands. I was able to go back and forth between them, to explain, to argue, to present the question from an international standpoint and to suggest equitable solutions.

"But, as you may imagine, my greatest opportunities of being useful were in the Western countries Often when there were slight misunderstandings between France and England, and I had occasion to go from one country to the other, I exerted myself to point out the motives underlying public sentiment in each country, to explain decisions and to remove misunderstanding. I am an official of both countries and meet the officials of each as such

"One day the German trade unionists asked me to take up the question of prisoners of war still in France and in response I unofficially approached the French Government Then there was a case of a serious misunderstanding as to the interpretation of the decision of the Inter-Allied Commission with respect to the delivery of diesel engines I happened to be in Germany just at that time and was able to assist in clearing up the situation Whenever I am in a position to set right misunderstanding, or to prevent a dispute, I make it my business to do so Good understanding in labor matters is not to be separated from conciliatory activity in other spheres"

"I should think I suggested "that there must be occasional moments of the thrill of adventure in these journeyings"

"There are indeed," said Director Thomas. "In Poland just after the armistice with Russia, for instance, the whole country being still stricken by war, we were forced to travel by military train, astarm with soldiers and bristling with armament. Our peaceful mission thus assumed an air that was altogether military

A good deal more peculiar and more striking by contrast were two meetings held in Italy one immediately on the heels of the other In Rome, I had to speak at a meeting of civil servants and persons interested in social reform I arrived there and was informed that the King would be present The King the Court, members of the League of Nations, ambassadors—they were all there It was a most solemn occasion

"I left the same evening to speak at Milan the following day At Milan I had barely begun when I was interrupted by anarchists who wanted to prevent me from speaking, thinking me a traitor to the working class. There was a fight chairs flew on every side Carabinieri appeared to restore order and, wanting to stay in order to hear the speech surrounded the audience I declared that I would not speak in the presence of armed force and that I was appealing solely to reasonable people The hall was cleared, the speech was given But it was quite different from the night before in Rome."

MR THOMAS stopped to explain what it was that this new international agency attempted to accomplish He said that it was a great mistake to propose that it represented merely labor that it was as much the instrument of industry and more so of the public The nations, for example, had long wanted to reach an agreement for the discontinuance of the use of white sulphur in match manufacture because it resulted in workers getting "phosy-jaw," a horrible disease For similar reasons they had wanted to regulate the use of white lead paint manufacture They had wanted to provide for the protection of the worker against anthrax, that deadly disease which wool-sorters get from contaminated raw material

But if one nation provided against these industrial cancers it gave those that did not a handicap in economical production that meant ruin to the humane country. It is the purpose of the International Labor Office to bring Governments into agreement in such matters.

The advanced nations throw many more protections around their workers than do the backward nations These protections cost money They place a handicap upon the advanced nations, give the backward nations an advantage in economical operation. The United States, for instance, carries a big handicap in the operation of her merchant marine in the shorter hours and more favorble living conditions required by her laws. The International Labor Office would relieve her of that handicap by beginning at the other end and bringing other nations up to her standards.

The primary task of the International Labor Office, through agreements among Governments, is to improve the conditions in backward countries. Workers in those countries will benefit stupendously. In advanced countries like the United States, the first benefit will be to industry and labor that are relieved of the competition of unprotected, cheap workers. It is industry in advanced nations that should be the best friend of the International Labor Office.

"I am convinced that it is by multiplying this sort of actions," Mr Thomas continued, "that we can best promote the final establishment of peace Of course, in all this work I am not able to shed my French personality altogether I might even say that my experience in France, as much as my wartime international relations, often helps me to assume this official sort of character But as far as possible I try to bring an international outlook to it all. To quote the phrase we like to use at our office, 'I am an internationalist of French origin,' but first and foremost, as is my duty, I try to be international"

"HAVE you ever thought of visiting the United States," I asked.

"For a year," he said enthusiastically, "I have been thinking of making such a journey. I definitely planned it last spring and now I am again definitely arranging to go next fall I have been wanting for a long time to get into touch with the great North American Republic

What I particularly want to know is the real position of American labor Whether I examine the learned statistics collected by my friend, Dr Royal Meeker, the American who heads our Research Division, or recent accounts of journeys or investigations carried out in America, I fail to visualize clearly the position of the American worker. Some say It is the country of short hours, of high wages of industrial democracy, of organization humanization, democratization of labor that this is the ideal which is gradually being realized in America Others paint a different picture of a land of the severest exploitation long hours of work of a terrible situation of unskilled workers, contempt of human life, and all that sort of thing No doubt both these classes of phenomena exist Perhaps there are two Americas in labor matters; but what is the relation of one to the other? What are the proportions between them? How do they work together and mingle? How can general progress be achieved?

"That is the first phase of American life that would interest me And the second would be to try to understand to the full what I would call American idealism In Europe at the end of the war, many of us were inspired by the views of Wilson. Wilson really gave impression to a high ideal of democracy and peace; and then there came the whole business of the Peace Treaty when your political conflict developed with violence and your new administration came into power Then, for a moment we seemed to lose our way We asked ourselves whether the Government could really be associated with views which in Europe were anti Wilson views, with the old nationalist, chauvinist ideas, and then we saw the inaugural resolutions of the Washington Conference and we learned the outlook that inspired them.

"Seen from afar, from the other side of the ocean, the ideas of Harding and Hoover are not so very different, taken as a whole, from the pacifist and humanitarian views of President Wilson There must then be what may be described as one single American idealism dominating all, and it is with this idealism that I would like to get closely and completely into touch.

When am I going there? I do not know exactly, but you can judge from this how in imagination I dream of America, and why I want to enter into contact with her, to put her on my waiting list"

Albert Thomas, director of the International Labor Office, with headquarters in Geneva, who is coming to America this fall to study American labor. Thomas knows intimately world leaders. In this interview Mr. Thomas tells how the Geneva organization represents not merely labor, but industry the world over. And he says the only way to get results on international adjustments is to do things in person—get out in the trenches with typewriter

A Woman Who Teaches Fifty-Year-Old Children

By M. P. Calvert

WHAT is an adult school? It is a school for grown ups who never had a chance while they were children. These schools were called into being by the sense of shame felt by loyal Carolinians when they were confronted by South Carolina's standing in the table of illiteracy. Next to the lowest State in the Union! Something must be done about it, and it must be done quickly. The shame of it was driven home by the report of the surgeon general in the World War, which showed 49.5 per cent of illiteracy among the soldiers that were mustered into service from that State, as against 16.6 per cent in New York, even with its large foreign element. The percentage in South Carolina was so high as to cause a doubt concerning the accuracy of the data. A check was made and the figures verified

It was in 1913 that the first school for adults was opened. Miss Julia Selden, who was teaching in a cotton mill school in Spartanburg, S. C., became obsessed with the idea of a school for grown ups. With the co-operation of the mill authorities she opened a number of night schools in the mill villages. The teachers were paid $1 per night, the expense being defrayed by the mill It required tact and patience and infinite human sympathy to get the pupils into those first night schools "I would love to know how to read and write, but I ain't never had no chance and am ashamed now," or "Oh, I'm too old, I can't learn nothing now" Such would be the answers when a teacher would approach one of these refined, shy people and solicit their attendance at school But the teachers were persistent, as well as sympathetic, and the requisite number of pupils was obtained.

It was at this first night school at Spartan Mill Village that a peculiar case developed, a case that would be an interesting study to a psychologist, or to the latest psychoanalyst expert A father, a mother, three, enrolled as a student and his son forty years old was a student in the same school There was much friendly rivalry between the two as to who would learn to write first The older man the father, progressed with remarkable rapidity, learning to form his letters with precision and accuracy, and learning to spell, too. But when he advanced to the letter-writing stage, or to any form of composition, he persisted in writing from right to left, always commencing on the right of the page after the manner of the Chinese When last heard from his letters were still puzzles to read unless you had the key

The State Superintendent of Education became interested in this new venture in education, and in 1914 an interesting experiment was tried out in Laurens County, adjoining Spartanburg The township registering the greatest illiteracy was selected as a field for the experiment, teachers volunteered their services and schools were established The results were most gratifying, and proved beyond question that the illiterate farmers of the rural districts were only awaiting 'a chance' to gain what had been denied them in their early years. In the same year, Miss Sadie Goggans, supervising teacher in Newberry County, opened a number of night schools in her county. Too much honor cannot be given the young women teachers who, without salary, gave of their time and strength and enthusiasm in establishing these first schools in their attempt to redeem their State

IN 1916 the Legislature was made to recognize the worth of the work which had been made possible by volunteer teachers and the financial aid of the cotton mills and an appropriation of $5000 was made In 1918 this amount was doubled and was so wisely expended that the movement now constitutes an important division in the public school system of South Carolina. When you speak of a system of schools in South Carolina, always remember that the schools for the colored children and "grown ups" are kept separate from the white schools and that all are under the State Superintendent of Education

Whenever a sufficient number of adult pupils ten is the minimum desire a school a teacher is found for them and sessions are opened. The term for a special school should continue twenty-four nights for a "continuation school" six months, this last term being made possible by State aid and special moneys from the cotton mills The adult school system does not teach further than the fifth grade An ambitious pupil, however, is given opportunity to continue his studies at another unique institution established in Spartanburg, for the education of the cotton mill illiterates At this institution a pupil goes to school a week, and works in their model cotton-mill a week thereby supporting himself while acquiring a high school education. Oh it is wonderful what South Carolina is doing "to secede from illiteracy!"

THE unusual system of schools that has been evolved for these unusual pupils called for unusual text-books The B. F. Johnson Publishing Company, of Richmond, has prepared a book for adult beginners writing and composition It teaches capitalization punctuation, paragraphing, pronunciation and spelling The curriculum is not like the ordinary school for beginners, and the teachers are specially trained

When the State Superintendent of Education recognized the growth of these schools and the need for organization, he appointed a State Supervisor of Adult Schools Miss Will Lou Gray, of Laurens, was given this position She had no precedents She had to blize the trail for herself She realized that if she was to succeed she had to have the help of every man woman and child in the State, that would go toward forming public sentiment If the work was to be effective she decided the accomplishment of four definite things

First To interest the public at large in this intensive campaign against illiteracy

Second To place before the Legislature with the aid of the State superintendent and the Literacy Commission such concrete facts that adequate financial aid would be given

Third To perfect some plan of individual county campaign

Fourth To train teachers for this special work

To accomplish all these things, at once, required all the zim and energy, all the executive ability with which Miss Gray is endowed She devided her time into field-work and office work. In her field-work, she usually goes to a county by invitation. She first meets the county superintendent, the supervisor or county organizer, where one is employed Together they go over plans for the county She next tries to interest such citizens as will be helpful to the work visits the homes of illiterates with the teachers and uses her intense personality in many ways not included in the program The many letters she receives at her office give abundant evidence of the power of her individual influence "Miss Gray, I am writing you a letter to show you I have earned to write since you were at Salem I am thirty-three years old, and this is my best letter I will not have to make my mark any more. Yours truly, G. W. Blackston"

And the work goes on all over the State, conducted in like manner as in this banner county The last report of the State supervisor reports white illiterates ten years and over 10 per cent or 50 245 Negro illiterates ten years and over 38.7 per cent, or 226 242 showing a very marked decrease since the movement was started.

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

TOWN DRUNKARDS

Have you noticed the passing of that famous character known as the Town Drunkard? He is nearly extinct

Twenty years ago, and even less, no community was complete without a Town Drunkard If he were married, his wife usually had to take in washing If single, he slept in the tanyard, back of the grain elevator or in any other convenient and rent free locality that goes to make up the typical village

In the cities, the Town Drunkard's residence and means of support always were somewhat of a mystery, though he passed many a night in jail

There were all kinds of Town Drunkards, from vagrants to worthless sons of respectable and hard working families. Whether rich or poor, in village or city, they were all tarred with the same stick Their thirst was characteristic and mutual

When the Town Drunkard couldn't bum the price of a drink, he sometimes resorted to draining the few remaining drops from the empty bottles behind the village tavern or the depot where they awaited shipment back to the brewers and distillers

All Town Drunkards, whether or not they were like the father of Huckleberry Finn, always had some woman eating her heart out with worry

How many people, now scheming like bucketshop plungers, to get a drink, recall the heartaches and misery in the home where such a male member had "developed the appetite" that was 'getting the best of him?'

The outlaw John Barleycorn has become almost an heroic figure People seem to be forgetting his monstrous side

Prohibition has its defects There is much drinking in some homes "among people who never thought of it before the country went dry '

In the main, though, the nation is basically against alcohol A referendum would find a good many wets at the last minute, changing their minds and voting dry Light wines and beer may be returning, maybe not, but "the hard stuff' is gone for good In all the talk about "modifying the Volstead act," the most interesting feature is that practically no one is plugging for a return of the saloon

And the Town Drunkards who have reformed by necessity are the driest of the drys in a good many cases—except where they couldn't stand the change and the undertaker had to pour them back into the jug

HOW WE ARE DISCUSSING THE ISSUES IN TEXAS.

The speaker who can sling the most epithets in the most picturesque language is getting the biggest yells in the senatorial run-off campaign It may be a reflection on us but if we didn't like that kind of stuff it is hard to imagine the candidates and speakers would be handing it out to us

Here is the language that one man who is a candidate for the high and dignified office of U S senator uses in talking about his opponent

Earle B Mayfield—That disgraced, discredited degenerate impeached ex-governor Jim Ferguson * * * I am not worrying about any of the slanders this slimy parjurer might utter against me.

And here a what his opponent for that same high and dignified office says about Mr Mayfield

James F Ferguson—Just think, Earle, of all the poker games you have been in—the thousands of dollars pocket games; just think of all the good booze you have drunk and all the running around you did at the capital

That kind of campaigning is infectious and we find the speakers for these candidates following the same tactics For example

Attorney C C McDonald—They're fighting him now and trying to put a lounge lizard in the senate; to elect a man who carries a little note book in his pocket with women's telephone numbers on it.

Or listen to this

Rev H D Knickerbocker—And to those who vote for Jim Ferguson I say this That they better hold their nose and pray to the buzzards to lend their aromatic presence to the occasion in order to drown out the stink that their casting of a ballot for this man will cause to spring from the earth.

A whole page of stuff like this and some even worse might be reprinted from the speeches in the present campaign It makes us wonder what we are coming to

Theda Bara wants to come back We haven't heard from Theda since the flappers broke out

Every time we think about the coal strike we put more moth balls in our winter underwear

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON BEING YOUR OWN KING.

Nothing springs into being full grown Growth is a matter of small beginnings

If the great oak could talk it would tell you that at one time it slept in the ground, dead to all light, until one day it poked its head into the day and became a small bush—but with a deep desire in its heart to become a great tree

And that is what makes great achievements in this world, great folks and unheard-of discoveries—this desire to be something better, something greater

Potential leadership is born in nearly everyone You become your own king by setting out to be your own king

But if you want to become great you must set your mind and heart and all your efforts to this end

I read a story the other day about a boy who so loved trees that he dedicated his life to the preservation of the tree—and today he is known all over America as the greatest expert in tree surgery and treatment

This is a day of specialties Because people have learned that the only way to have anything done properly is to have that thing done by someone who knows most about that one thing

I know of a man who was broken in health and had to go to a northern resort to get strong. While there he desired to keep busy and so he began to pop corn and sell it on the street When I met him, he was one of the healthiest men in the town, had made a fortune and was known far and wide as the man who made the best popcorn in the world' They used to send for this man's popcorn by the bushel He did one thing better than it had been done before He became a Popcorn King

Napoleon never scattered his army He massed it, and then drove it with the determination of a bulldog, into the weakest point of the enemy's line until it yielded

Don't be a mere stenographer—be the best that has ever worked in the office where you are placed. Keep looking ahead Keep compelling yourself to get better and more efficient Study your failings

I heard of a man the other day who had secured a certain job and this was the remark of my friend who told me of it 'Well if he has the job, it will be done right '

Be your own King—and a real one at that'

THE GRIND

Rough road,
Long road,
Tug and haul until you die'
Heavy load,
Weary load,
Mop your brow and heave a sigh
Work, work,
Work, work
All you meet from day to day,
No rest,
No rest
'What's the use of it? you say

Dull grind,
Dreary grind
Same tomorrow as today
"Hey you'
Say you'
Get to work and earn your pay'
Sick heart,
Tired heart,
Weary mind and muscles sore,
Turning wheel
Flying wheel
What is all the sweating for'

Well child
Sick child
Mother with her eyes of blue
Sad home
Glad home
All of these depend on you
Her smile,
Their smile
Ribbons blue and shoes to fit,
Stockings new,
Dresses new
This is what you get from it

Clang clang
Bang clang
Every blow a youngster's smile
Dreary dirt,
Grimy dirt
They will find it all worth while

Hold fast

Here's a ribbon for her hair

CHOP SUEY

No chop suey anywhere in China reports Walter G Whiffen American newspaper man stationed at Pekin

Quite natural for chop suey is an American dish invented by an American chef years ago in San Francisco

It is part of the hokum which makes up nine-tenths of our civilization A front a bluff and a little paint and the world will think you what you ain't.

AUTOS

Henry Ford predicts that eventually there will be 30,000 000 autos in the United States That, says Ford, will be the 'saturation point' nightmare of people in the auto business

Thirty million autos would be nearly three times as many as we have now

Ford expects one auto for each four or five people. The ratio now is one in ten

Passenger traffic may shift to airplanes before autos reach the 30,000 000 mark

CHEAP

Woolworth 5-and-10 cent stores are selling goods at the rate of $166,000 000 a year Multiply it by 20 and you have the number of nickel purchases necessary to make the year's sales

This business is a greater monument to its founder than the Woolworth building It shows what a gigantic thing can grow from the small seed a new idea

EASY

Hundreds of big business men band together in an organization "to study the human factor in American business and industrial life' The purpose is to lessen friction between employer and employe.

Meetings will be had, long speeches made committees appointed, investigations started, et cetera et cetera

Why go to so much fuss when all's needed is a mutual practice of the Golden Rule? Failing to live up to that rule is the cause of nine tenths of life's problems maybe more

POST-MORTEM

So many records have been destroyed that the real money cost of the world war never will be known say economists of Bankers Trust company

Their estimate is $84 946 000 000 three eights for the kaiser crowd the rest for the allies This includes property losses as well as direct spending After all it is only $30 for each man woman and child in the world—not enough to be seriously alarmed at

FAT

American women are getting fatter Forty five out of 100 of them are classified as stout by clothing makers So reports Chas Pomeerants New York fashion expert. In keeping thin city women lead those of small town and farm.

Exercise and diet are the best ways to fight fat In years to come weight will be regulated by tinkering with the body's endocrine glands That would please Dr M Brown Sequard, the original gland man who was ridiculed even by scientists when he first advanced glandular theories 33 years ago

BRIGHT'S DISEASE

By DR R H BISHOP

Bright's disease is one of those maladies that give few definite warnings until it is so far advanced as to be practically incurable It is a great argument for periodical examinations for only thus can the general condition of the body and its organs be looked up and incipient Bright's disease discovered

The average case of bright's disease—sometimes called nephritis—lasts about 15 years A person will generally complain of constant complaining of dyspepsia nervousness liver trouble sick headaches anemia or biliousness not realizing that perhaps there is something far worse at the source of things

Usually bad habits cause Bright's disease—bad habits in eating and drinking mostly

A one day fast is considered quite helpful in acute Bright's disease as it gives the kidneys a chance to catch up in their work

Many authorities recommend one day a week on a fruit and milk diet

It is necessary too to become virtually a vegetarian if you have Bright's disease The excess of proteins in meat places a heavy strain on the kidneys A vegetable diet supplies better energy and endurance than any kind of meat

The victim of the disease should drink lots of water hot or cold as preferred Drink it between or with meals or any time you prefer but drink two or three quarts a day

Devote yourself to the out-of-doors life but nothing strenuous Walking motoring for short distances only golf and fishing are sports that will prove of benefit

OUT OUR WAY BY ELTON

The RED HOUSE MYSTERY

by A.A.MILNE

© 1922 E P Dutton Company

Cayley asked us to bring a letter along Bill explained to Betty Callaghan Here you are

You will tell him won't you how dreadfully sorry I am about—about what has happened It seems so hopeless to say anything so hopeless even to believe it If it is true what we've heard

Bill repeated the outline of the events of yesterday

Yes * * * And Mr Ablett hasn't been found yet?

No

She shook her head in distress 'It still seems to have happened to somebody else somebody we didn't know at all Then with a sudden grave smile which included both of them But you must come and have some tea

It's awfully good of you said Bill awkwardly

You will work it? she said to Antony

Thank you very much

Mrs Norbury was delighted to see them she always was to see any man in fact who came up to the necessary standard of social fitness When the work was over, she summed up in those beautiful words A marriage has been arranged and will horrify like place between Angela daughter of the late John Norbury * * * then she would utter a fearful Nor dinitis and depart in tears—to a better world if Heaven insisted but preferably to Bournemouth as more dignified establishment

But it was not an elegant fact that the visitors from the Red House were received with such eager cordiality and even her special smile for parsons was there It was distinctive rather than cordial that she wanted at this moment news of Mark If she was bringing it off at first sight if the engagement column of the Morning Post were preceded as in the case of its obituary columns by a premonitory bulletin the announcement of yesterday would have cried triumphantly to the world or to such part of the world as mattered A marriage has very nearly been arranged by Mrs Norbury and will certainly take place between Angela only daughter of the late John Norbury and Mark Ablett of the Red House

The girl was often amused by her mother's ways sometimes ashamed of them sometimes exasperated by them Mr Mark Ablett affair had seemed to her particularly distressing for Mrs was not only in league with her mother against her It was a pleasure to turn to Cayley that hopeless incligible

But alas Cayley had misunderstood her She could not imagine Cayley in love until she saw it and tried too late to stop it That was four days ago She had not seen him since and now here was the letter She dreaded opening it It was a relief to feel that at least she had an excuse for not doing so while her guests were in the house

Mrs Norbury recognized at once that Antony was likely to be the more sympathetic listener and when tea was over and Bill and Angela had been dispatched to the garden dear Mr Gillingham found himself on the sofa beside her listening to many things which were of even greater interest to him than she could possibly have hopes.

It is terrible terrible she said And to suggest that dear Mr Ablett—

Antony made suitable noises

"You've seen Mr Ablett for yourself A kinder more warmhearted man—

Antony explained that he had not seen Mr Ablett

Of course yes I was forgetting But, believe me Mr Gillingham you can trust a woman's intuition in these matters '

Antony said that he was sure of this

"Think of my feelings as a mother

Antony was thinking of Miss Norbury's feelings as a daughter and wondering if she guessed that her affairs were now being discussed with a stranger Mark engaged or about to be engaged Had that any bearing on the events of yesterday? Why for instance would Mrs Norbury have thought of her brother Robert 'that family skeleton' Was this another reason for wanting brother Robert out of the way

[illegible] Antony was bewildered

The course of Mrs Norbury's [illegible] Antony asked [illegible]

There was nothing in that at all Mrs Norbury [illegible] Antony

anybody"

Oh I beg your pardon I never meant

Nothing I can say that for dear Angela with perfect confidence Whether he made advances— She broke off with a shrug of her plump shoulders

Antony waited eagerly

Naturally they met Possibly he might have—I don't know But my duty as a mother was clear Mr Gillingham

Mr Gillingham made an encouraging noise

I told him quite frankly that—how shall I put it?—that he was trespassing Tactfully of course But frankly

You mean said Antony trying to speak calmly that you told him that—er Mr Ablett and your daughter—?

Mrs Norbury nodded several times Exactly Mr Gillingham I had my duty as a mother

There must have been a certain awkwardness about the next moment suggested Antony

Naturally he has not been here since No doubt they would have been bound to meet up at the Red House sooner or later

Oh this was only quite lately'

Last week Mr Gillingham I spoke just in time

Ah said Antony under his breath He had been waiting for it

'Think of my feelings as a mother

He would have liked to have gone away at this He might have thought over the news at his ease but Mrs Norbury was still talking

Girls are so foolish Mr Gillingham I am sure I was saying to Angela [illegible] from the beginning that dear Mr Ablett was just the husband for my little girl You never knew him

Antony said again that he had not seen Mr Ablett

Such a gentleman So nice looking in his own way A regular Velasquez—I should say Van Dyck Angela would have it that she could never marry a man with a beard As if it mattered when— She broke off and Antony finished her sentence for her

The Red House is certainly charming he said

Charming Quite charming

She gave a deep sigh Antony was about to snatch the opportunity of leaving when Mrs Norbury began again

And then there's the scapegrace brother of his He was perfectly frank with me Mr Gillingham He told me of this brother and I told him that I was quite certain it would make no difference to my daughter's feelings for him * * * After all the brother was in Australia

When was this? Yesterday? Antony felt that if Mark had only mentioned it after his brother's announcement of a personal call at the Red House this perfect frankness had a good deal of wisdom behind it

It couldn't have been yesterday Mr Gillingham Yesterday— she shuddered and [illegible]

I thought perhaps he had been down here in the morning

Oh no There is such a thing Mr Gillingham as being too devoted a lover Not in the morning No We both agreed that dear Angela—Oh no No the day before yesterday when he happened to drop in about teatime

It occurred to Antony that Mrs Norbury [illegible] Mark and Miss Norbury [illegible] engaged She was now [illegible] dear Angela [illegible] that dear Angela [illegible] for the matter [illegible]

The day before yesterday As [illegible] Mr Ablett [illegible] Mr Gillingham [illegible] up [illegible] Antony

Naturally [illegible] Antony noticed [illegible] Why [illegible] But stop [illegible] But after all [illegible] hundred [illegible] death [illegible] there

He got up to go [illegible] Bill Mrs Norbury [illegible] Mark [illegible] Mrs [illegible] But that was enough

[illegible] said [illegible] wicked [illegible] people [illegible] myself [illegible] business [illegible] Mark or to [illegible] This [illegible] heartedly for [illegible] Well no [illegible] against him

They had come to the gate [illegible] from the [illegible]

[illegible] little place [illegible]

Very [illegible] the [illegible] for [illegible] Mark [illegible] Antony [illegible] Mrs Norbury [illegible] Antony [illegible] It was Mark [illegible]

Spudders Take Odd Game of Series From Bears in the Ninth

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 18.—Patsy Flaherty was invincible here yesterday in the pinches and led the Spudders to a 2 to 1 victory over the Bears in the final game of the series. He found plenty of opposition in Bob Couchman and were it not for an error by Harvey Hiller in the ninth chapter the game would undoubtedly have gone into several extra sessions

With Beecher on third and Adams on first in the final frame by virtue of base hits, Hiller muffed Summa's pop fly, allowing Beecher to score the winning run. The first Spudder tally trickled over the plate in the first inning on singles by Tanner and Miller after the former had gone to second on Adams' infield out

Hiller accounted for the only Bruin tally with a prodigious wallop in the sixth period which cleared the left field barrier and up until the time of his bobble in the ninth his fielding was the outstanding feature of the game.

Flaherty's worst inning was the eighth With one away he walked Meyers Hiller made it two down by hoisting to Miller, but Couchman poked a single to right which sent Meyers to third while Fuller drew the second pass of the inning Flaherty wasn't any too composed when he started pitching to Gross and the count was three and one on him before he shot the next two by him for a strikeout.

In six of the nine innings, the Bruins were retired in order though two snappy double plays saved Flaherty. The Bears also contributed a brace of fast double killings The game was one of the fastest of the season, being played in one hour and 24 minutes. The box score.

LEGION WILL CALL OFF TITLE BOUT IF GOVERNOR INSISTS

INDIANAPOLIS, Aug 18—American Legion officials under whose auspices the proposed ten round bout between Jack Dempsey and Bill Brennan is scheduled to be held at Michigan City Labor day will call off the contest if Governor McCray continues to maintain the opinion that the affair is illegal, according to a statement issued by Oswald Ryan, national committeeman of the legion from Indiana. The legions organization stands for law and order, Mr Ryan said, and if the governor decides to prohibit the contest the legion will comply with his wishes.

However, Mr. Ryan said the affair was to be a boxing exhibition and not a prize fight and added there was considerable difference in the two classes of fisticuffs

While the state law does not define prize fighting, but simply declares that it is illegal, Governor McCray points out that he is convinced that the Dempsey-Brennan match is to be a prize fight and therefore should be stopped

The governor declares that he does not anticipate any difficulties with the local officials about stopping the bout when they are informed of his position

The law regarding prize fighting simply states that whoever engages as principal in any fight or attends any such fight as a backer, trainer, second, umpire, assistant, reporter or in any other capacity, shall on conviction be fined not less than $50 nor more than $500, to which may be added imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding six months

"Such an act is at once understood to mean a pugilistic encounter for a prize or a wager"

Governor McCray insists that he is convinced that the affair at Michigan City is to be a prize fight.

"11."

If the Spudders take three out of every four played on the road they'll come back on top

Great Finishers.

The three games won by the Salmies since hitting the trail have been chalked up in the ninth. That speaks well for their spirit.

At Last.

The "creosote bailes finally got over the hump and stopped the Sand Crabs

One Way vs. the Other

The Spudder trial was transferred to Houston so that any action taken would be final in the league Any appeal will have to be made to the National Association Should the club be vindicated, as it undoubtedly will, the Dallas scribes will have a lot to account for The team will either be completely vindicated or one or two Spudders should be given the gate There can be no half-way mark Should the protest be sustained it will mean that somebody is guilty. The guilty party should be barred from the game.

Danny Delivers Again.

Danny Clark came through with a pinch double Thursday for the second time in as many days, but his blow didn't help the Tigers He scored their only run.

Douglas Accuses Others.

The Phil Douglas incident is by no means closed. The blacklisted hurler claims that he will make some startling disclosures when he reaches New York. He has a letter in his possession which shows that he was approached first At least he says he has

The passing of Douglas marks the exit of one of the few spit ball hurlers left in the National league The only four left are Doak of the Cardinals, Mitchell and Grimes of the Dodgers and Fillingim of the Braves The moist ball is fast passing out of existence.

A Habit With Roy.

Roy Mitchell seems to have developed the habit of breaking winning streaks. He not only stopped the Spudders after they had chalked up 20 in a row but he ended the Crabs' court after they had scored eight successive victories

Out For Season.

Art Weis is apparently done for the present campaign. He is still forced to go about with a cane and though he hopes to join the club in Fort Worth he feels that he will be forced to sit on the bench His ankle is considerably swollen and tender yet

Well Traveled.

Weis believes that he would have covered as much, if not more, territory than any player in the country this year had he been able to swing around the circuit with the Spudders on their present trip He reported to the Cubs at Catalina Island in the Pacific last spring and played a few weeks along the coast He was with the Cubs early in the season and went to Cincinnati and St. Louis. He was then shipped to the American Association and made all the towns in that loop before coming to the Texas league. He has failed to play in the southern Texas league towns and Fort Worth Though only 20 years old, he's seeing his own country first

Beaumont Should Play Here.

No word has been received here yet as to where the Spudder-Exporter series will be played The last suggestion was that two games be played in Corsicana and two in Mexia, but it was not definitely decided It would probably inconvenience the Spudders considerably to jump home from Houston for one series and then back to Galveston, but a clean sweep of the series would make it worth while, regardless of the financial outcome The Spudder skipper stated before leaving that he would sacrifice money for ball games The Panthers brought the Orphans to their own lair and there is no reason why Salm shouldn't do the same The diamonds in Corsicana and Mexia are in no shape to risk another Spudder ankle or two. It is to be hoped that the games will be played here

ing while it was beseeching a settlement alleging that they knew no grievance and there is an unending story of appeals for relief where necessity of suffering were impelled where a mere expression of need ought to find ready compliance.

At every stage the government has been a just neutral regarding wage scales and working contracts. There are fundamental evils in our present system of production and distribution which make the wage problem difficult. In the bituminous coal fields are vastly more mines than are requisite to the country's needs and there are 300,000 more mine workers than are needed to produce in continuous employment the country's normal requirements.

By continuous employment I mean approximately 280 working days in the year. In many instances last year men were employed less than 150 days. In some cases much fewer than that. In the over-manned sections men divide the working time, and high wages are necessary to meet the cost of the barest living. Interrupted transportation, sorely broken employment, the failure to develop storage against enlarged demands and inadequate carrying—all these present problems bearing on righteous wage adjustment, and demand constructive solution.

Because of these things, because of the impressions of many cases of unjustifiable profits in the industry and because public interest demands investigation and demands the finding of facts be given to the public, I am asking at your hands the authority to create a commission to make a searching investigation into the whole coal industry, with provisions for its lawful activities and the bestowal of authority to reveal every phase of coal production sale and distribution. I am speaking now on behalf of mine workers, mine operators and the American public. It will bring protection to all and point the way to continuity of production and the better economic functioning of the industry in the future.

Investigation Necessary.

The necessity for such a searching national investigation with constructive recommendation is imperative. At the moment the coal skies are clearing but unless we find a cure for the economic ills which affect the industry and therein find a basis for righteous relationship, we shall be faced with a like menacing situation on next April 1 on the expiration of the wage contracts which are now being made.

The need for such investigation and independent consideration is revealed by both operators and mine workers in the provision in the Cleveland agreement so recently made. The government will gladly co-operate with the industry in this program so far as it is the public interest to do so, but I have an unalterable conviction that no lasting satisfaction or worthwhile results will ensue unless we may have a government commission, independent of the industry, clothed with authority by the congress to search deeply so that it may advise as to fair wages and as to conditions of labor and recommend the enactment of laws to protect the public in the future.

The almost total exhaustion of stocks of coal, the crippled condition of the railways, the distressed situation that has arisen and might grow worse in our great cities due to the shortage of anthracite, the suffering which might arise in the northwest through failure to meet winter needs by lake transportation all these added to the possibility of outrageous price demands, in spite of the most zealous voluntary efforts of the government to restrain them make it necessary to ask you to consider some form of temporary control of distribution and prices.

The administration earnestly has sought to restrain profiteering and to secure the rightful distribution of such coal as has been available in this emergency. There were no legal powers for price control. There has been cordial cooperation in many fields. A fine revelation of business conscience stronger than the temptation to profit by a peoples misfortune. There have been instances of flat refusal. I rejoice to make grateful acknowledgment to those who preferred to contribute to national welfare rather than profit by a nation's distress.

If it may have your approval, I recommend immediate provision for a temporary national coal agency with needed capital to purchase, sell and distribute coal which is carried in interstate shipment. I do not mean that all interstate coal shall be handled by such a federal organization, perhaps none will be necessary, but it will restore its capital to the public treasury and will be the instrumentality of guarding the public interest where private conscience is insensible to a public need.

This proposal does not relate to any possible employment in intrastate shipments. Price restraint and equitable distribution in intrastate shipments is a responsibility of the states own governments. Of such voluntary activities as have been carried in thus far, the federal government has endeavored to reestablish the authority and responsibility in the states which was undermined in the necessary centralization of authority during the world war.

Strike of Shop Centre

The public menace in the coal situation was made more acute and more serious at the beginning of July by the strike of the federated shop crafts of the railroad service, a strike against a wage decision made by the railroad labor board, directly affecting approximately 400,000 men. The justice of the decision is not for discussion here. The decision has been lost sight of in subsequent developments. In any event it was always possible to appeal for rehearing and the submission of new evidence and it is always a safe assumption that a government agency of adjustment deciding unjustly will be quick to make right any wrong.

The labor board was created by congress for the express purpose of hearing and deciding disputes between the carriers and their employes so that no controversy need lead to an interruption in interstate transportation.

It was inevitable that many wage disputes should arise. Wages had mounted upward necessarily and justly during the war upheaval likewise the cost of transportation so that the higher wages might be paid. It was inevitable that some readjustments should follow. Naturally these readjustments were resisted. The administrative government neither advocated nor opposed it only held that the labor board was the lawful agency of the government to hear and decide disputes and its authority must be sustained as the law contemplates. This must be so whether the carriers or the employes ignore its decisions.

Unhappily a number of decisions of this board had been ignored by the carriers. In only one instance, however, had a decision challenged by a carrier been brought to the attention of the department of the justice, and this decision was promptly carried to the courts and has recently been sustained in the federal court of appeals. The public or the executive had no knowledge of the ignored decisions in other cases, because they did not hinder transportation. When these failures of many of the carriers to abide by decisions of the board, were brought to my attention, I could more fairly appraise the feelings of the strikers, though they had a remedy without seeking to paralyze interstate commerce.

Law Is Inadequate.

The law creating the railroad labor board is inadequate. Contrary to popular impression, it has little or no power to enforce its decisions. It can impose no penalties on either party disregarding its decisions. It cannot halt a strike, and manifestly congress deliberately omitted the enactment of compulsory arbitration. The decisions of the board must be made enforceable and effective against carriers and employers alike. But the law is new and so perfection of it by congress at this moment could be helpful in the present threatened paralysis of transportation.

Happily, it is always lawful and oft-times possible to settle disputes outside of court, so in a desire to serve public welfare I ventured upon an attempt at mediation. Those who had preceded me in attempted settlements had made some progress. I submitted to the officials of the striking employes and the chairman of the Association of Railway Executives in writing, on the same day, a tentative proposal for settlement. Knowing that some of the carriers had offended by ignoring the decisions of the board and the employes had struck when they had a remedy without the strike, I felt it was best to start all over again resume work, all to agree to abide faithfully by the board's decisions, make it a real tribunal of peace in transportation and everybody serve the public. The barrier to be surmounted was the question of seniority. By the workmen these rights are held to be sacred and unsurrendered by a strike. By the carriers the preservation of seniority is the weapon of discipline on the one hand and the reward of faithful employes on the other. It has been an almost invariable rule that when strikes have been lost seniority and its advantages have been surrendered, when strikes have been settled seniority has been restored. In the tentative proposals which I sponsored, it was provided that everybody should go to work with seniority rights unimpaired, that there should be no discrimination by either workmen or carriers against workmen who did strike. I realized that the proposal must carry a disappointment to employes who had inherited promotion by staying loyally on the job and to such new men as had sought jobs looking to permanent employment, but I wanted the fresh start and maintained transportation service, and I appraised the disappointment of the few to be less important than the impending misfortune to the nation. It was not what I would ask ordinarily to be considered or concerned, but at that moment of deep anxiety with the coal shortage gravely menacing. I was thinking of the pressing demands of the welfare of the whole people. I believed the sacrifice brought to the men involved could be amply compensated for by the carriers in practical ways.

I believed the matter of transcendent importance was the acceptance of the proposal to respect the labor board's decisions on the questions which formed the issue at the time of the strike. The public compensation would be complete in guarding by laws against recurrence.

Carriers Reject Proposal.

The proposal was rejected by the carriers. Though the rejection did not end all negotiations it left the government only one course, to call the striking workmen to return to work, to call the carriers to assign them to work and leave the dispute about seniority to the labor board for decision. When negotiations or mediation fails this is the course contemplated by the law and the government can have no chart for its course except the law. To this call a majority of the carriers responded favorably proposing to reemploy all strikers except those guilty of violence against workmen or property, to restore the striking workmen to their old positions, where vacant or to like positions where vacancies are filled questions of seniority which cannot be settled between the employer and the employes to go to the labor board for decision. The minority of the carriers proposed to assign jobs to workmen on strike only where the positions were vacant. Neither proposal has been accepted.

Thus the narrative brings us to the present moment but it has not included the developments which have heightened the government's concern. Sympathetic strikes have developed here and there, seriously impairing interstate commerce. Deserted transcontinental trains in the desert regions of the southwest have revealed the cruelty and contempt for law on the part of some railway employes who have conspired to paralyze transportation and lawlessness and violence in a hundred places have revealed the failure of the striking unions to hold their forces to law observance. Men who refused to strike and who have braved insult and assault and risked their lives to serve a public need have been cruelly attacked and wounded or killed. Men seeking work and guards attempting to protect lives and property, even officers of the federal government, have been assaulted, humiliated and hindered in their duties. Strikers have armed themselves and gathered in mobs about railroad shops to offer armed violence to any man attempting to go to work. There is a state of lawlessness shocking to every conception of American law and order and violating the cherished guaranties of American freedom. At no time has the federal government been unready or unwilling to give its support to maintain law and order and restrain violence, but in no case has state authority confessed its inability to cope with the situation and asked for federal assistance.

Transportation Threatened

Under these conditions of hindrance and intimidation there has been such a lack of care of motive power that the deterioration of locomotives and the non-compliance with the safety requirements of the law are threatening the breakdown of transportation. This very serious menace is magnified by the million of losses to fruit growers and other producers of perishable foodstuffs and grievous losses to farmers who depend on transportation to market their grains at harvest time. Even worse it is fun

GROCERY and MARKET DEPARTMENT

FARMERS PREFER KANRED WHEAT AS SHOWN BY RESULTS

The following reports have been sent in to the writer during the last week. The explanations following the figures on yields and tests are those made by the growers themselves in reporting the results. Their explanations are indicated by the quotation marks.

E. H. F. Rathke, Iowa Park, made an average of 9⅞ bushels on 15 acres, testing 57 with Kanred. Just across a ten foot road he had 20 acres of Mariole wheat making 8⅞ bushels, testing 56. "Land was prepared alike and at the same time. The Mariole was sown about October the first, the Kanred about the last of October. The Mariole was up when the Kanred was sown. If I sow any wheat I shall sow all Kanred."

S. D. Adrian, Chillicothe, had 106 acres of Kanred which made 24½ bushels per acre, testing 60. His 250 acres of Turkey Red made 12 bushels and tested from 57 to 60. "Same preparation and seeded the same time."

W. W. James, Jenico, Donley county, had 14 acres of Kanred, making 16 bushels per acre test 69. He had 100 acres of Mediterranean which made 10 bushels per acre testing 68.

G. C. Holland, Amarillo, made an average of eight bushels on 600 acres, testing 58. He had no other kind but Kanred. He says: "I like Kanred and grow it exclusively."

C. L. Moore, Oklaunion, had 200 acres of Kanred which made eight bushels testing 59. He had 100 acres of soft wheat which made 11 bushels per acre, testing 59. He adds: "This is no test for Kanred as the land it was on was not prepared as well as the other. I don't think you will go wrong with Kanred."

C. M. Smith, Oklaunion, had 325 acres of Kanred which averaged 31 bushels per acre and tested 62. He had no other variety. "Was dusted in and consequently did not come up until this spring. I prefer Kanred seed as I got fine results last year."

R. V. Crowder, Quanah, had 40 acres of Kanred which made 10 bushels, testing 60. He had no other variety.

W. H. Henson, Seymour, had 40 acres of Kanred which made 11 bushels, testing 61. He had no other variety. "I am going to sow Kanred."

H. M. King, Oklaunion, had 90 acres of Kanred on which he did not report the yield. However, he makes this comment: "But for some reason it was very poor. However, I much prefer this variety to other wheat."

The writer wishes to add here that the reason the Oklaunion wheat growers like Kanred so well is because they have been growing it and dusting each other's crop for the past few years.

Plain Ice Cream

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH
Cooking Authority for NEA Service and Columbia University.

With a good foundation recipe any kind of ice cream can be made. It may be just cream sweetened and flavored and frozen. It may be made with a custard, varying from a simple to a rich custard. Then the cream added may be thin or heavy, and if heavy it is often beaten until stiff.

A very good recipe making sufficient cream for eight servings, is:

One pint milk, 1 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs, 1 cup heavy or 1 pint thin cream, 1 tablespoon vanilla.

Scald the milk and add to eggs slightly beaten with the sugar and salt. Cook over hot water until smooth and thickened.

Add cream cool, add vanilla, and freeze.

For a small quantity of ice cream in a freezer turned by hand, three measures of ice to one measure of salt is the best proportion to use for a smooth, fine grained cream.

Vegetable Salad

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH
Cooking Authority for NEA Service and Columbia University

During the summer fresh vegetables should be eaten every day. Sometimes they taste better cold. And what is more attractive than a pleasing arrangement of bright-colored vegetables with a little green lettuce or romaine or some salad plant and a good salad dressing?

Just a few things are well to avoid—for instance, a combination of beets and tomatoes, or carrots and tomatoes.

Try the following:

1 cup cooked green string beans, cut in pieces.
1 cup cooked carrots, cut in cubes or strips.
1 cup potatoes, cut in cubes.
1 cucumber, thinly sliced.
1 cup shaved raw cabbage.
1 head lettuce.
½ cup French dressing.
1 hard cooked egg.

It is well to serve such a salad arranging each vegetable by itself. Then if there is any one which some member of the family does not like, that vegetable can be avoided.

Chop the egg and add to the French dressing. Either put a slice or two of onion in the salad itself or chop it finely and add to the dressing.

If possible, arrange these vegetables on a platter. Place first lettuce, then the cabbage; on this arrange the piles of vegetables and over all pour the dressing.

Green Peas—Carrots

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH
Cooking Authority for NEA Service and Columbia University

When peas get old and a little too hard to cook as a vegetable, try making them into a loaf which is sufficiently satisfying to take the place of meat. Combination with carrots is attractive to the eye as well as good to the taste.

In the winter, dried or canned peas may be used in the same way.

2 cups cooked peas
½ cup soft, stale bread crumbs
1½ cups milk.
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon sugar.
3 eggs.
1 cup cooked carrots.
¼ teaspoon pepper.
½ teaspoon onion juice.
2 tablespoons melted butter.

Rub the cooked peas through a sieve. Cook the milk, butter and bread together until a paste. Add peas, seasonings, and eggs slightly beaten.

Turn into a buttered pan, set pan in another pan containing hot water and bake in a moderate oven until mixture is firm when tried with the point of a knife.

Loosen around the edges, invert on a platter and allow mixture to stand in a warm place while preparing the sauce and carrots.

For the sauce melt two tablespoons butter in a sauce pan. Add two level tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, a little pepper and one cup milk.

Cook, stirring constantly, until smooth and thickened. Add carrots and heat.

Uncover the loaf and turn the sauce and carrots around it. Another way is to pass the sauce, and have the carrots cut in strips and placed around the loaf. This is plenty for four.

Glazed Beets

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH
Cooking Authority for NEA Service and Columbia University.

Beets are an exceedingly good vegetable, good to the taste and pleasing to the eye. They make an excellent soup, are a fine addition to some salads and may be served as a vegetable in a variety of ways.

The first thing to do after washing them is to boil until tender. Then plunge them into cold water and slip off the skins.

Young small baby beets are usually served whole, but if they are larger ones cut in slices and cook as follows.

6 beets, boiled and sliced
3 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons sugar
A little salt

In the sauce pan place butter and sugar, and when a syrup is formed add beets and cook slowly 20 minutes.

Scalloped Tomatoes

By BERTHA E. SHAPLEIGH
Cooking Authority for NEA Service and Columbia University

There are certain meats which seem to need always a vegetable like the tomato and fish is especially good in combination with tomatoes cooked or raw.

Scalloped tomatoes, like scalloped oysters, may be good or equally poor, due to a careless use of the bread crumbs and too little seasoning. The following recipe is good.

Six tomatoes peeled and cut into thin slices, 2 cup fine bread crumbs (not stale bread is better than the over-dry), 3 tablespoons chopped onion, 3 tablespoons butter or bacon fat, 2 tablespoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, a little pepper.

Fry the onion in the butter or bacon fat for five minutes, but do not let it brown. Add crumbs and mix until crumbs are well coated with fat.

In a buttered baking dish place a layer of tomatoes, sprinkle with sugar, salt and pepper. Cover with crumbs and repeat until material is used, having crumbs on top.

Bake 20 minutes.

dering the transport of available coal when industry is on the verge of paralysis because of coal shortage, and life and health are menaced by coal famine in the great centers of population. Surely the threatening conditions must immediately press the congress and the country that no body of men whatever limited in numbers and responsible for railway management or powerful in numbers and the necessary forces in railroad operation, shall be permitted to choose a course which imperils public welfare. Neither organization of employers nor working men's unions may escape responsibility. When related to a public service the mere fact of organization magnifies that responsibility and public interest transcends that of either grouped capital or organized labor.

Another development is so significant that the hardships of the moment may well be endured to elicit popular attention to necessary settlement. It is fundamental to all freedom that all men have unquestioned rights to lawful pursuits to work and to live and choose their own lawful ways to happiness. In these strikes these rights have been denied by assault and violence by armed lawlessness. In many communities the municipal authorities have winked at these violations until liberty is a mockery and the law of matter of community contempt. It is fair to say that the great mass of organized workmen do not approve, but they seem helpless to hinder. These conditions cannot remain in free America. If free men cannot toil according to their own lawful choosing all our constitutional guaranties born of democracy are surrendered to mobocracy and the freedom of a hundred millions is surrendered to the small minority which would have no law.

Laws to Meet Emergency.

It is not my thought to ask congress to deal with these fundamental problems at this time. No hasty action would contribute to the solution of the present critical situation. There is existing law by which to settle the prevailing disputes. There are statutes for binding conspiracy to hinder interstate commerce. There are laws to assure the highest possible safety in railway service. It is my purpose to invoke these laws, civil and criminal, against all offenders alike. The legal safeguarding against like menaces in the future must be worked out when no passion sways, when no prejudice influences, when the whole problem may be appraised and the public welfare may be asserted against any and every interest which assumes authority beyond that of the government itself.

One specific thing I must ask at your hands at the earliest possible moment. There is pending a bill to provide for the better protection of aliens and for the enforcement of their treaty rights. It is a measure, in short, to create a jurisdiction for the federal courts through which the national government will have appropriate power to protect aliens in the rights secured to them under treaties and to deal with crimes which affect our foreign relations.

The matter has been before congress on many previous occasions. President Tyler in his first annual message, advised congress that inasmuch as "the government is charged with the maintenance of peace and the preservation of amicable relations with the nations of the earth, it ought to possess without question all the reasonable and proper means of maintaining the one and preserving the other."

President Harrison asked for the same bestowal of jurisdiction having encountered deep embarrassment which grew out of the lynching of 11 aliens in New Orleans in 1891. President McKinley dealing with a like problem in 1899 asked the conferring upon federal courts jurisdiction in that class of the federal government may be involved. President Roosevelt uttered a like request to congress in 1906, and President Taft pointed the defect in the present federal jurisdiction when he made his inaugural address in 1909. He declared that "it puts our government in a pusillanimous position to make definite engagements by an explanation that the duty to keep them is in states or cities not within our control. If we would promise, we must put ourselves in a position to perform our promise. We cannot permit the possible failure of justice due to local prejudice in any state or municipal government, to expose us to the risk of war which might be avoided if federal jurisdiction were asserted by suitable legislation by congress."

Refers to Mine Tragedy.

My renewal of this oft-made recommendation is impelled by a pitiable sense of federal impotence to deal with the shocking crime at Herrin, Ill., which so recently shamed and horrified the country in that butchery of human beings, wrought in madness, it is alleged that two aliens were murdered. This act adds to the outraged sense of American justice the humiliation which lies in the federal government confessed lack of authority to punish that unutterable crime.

Had it happened in any other land than our own, and the wrath of righteous justice were not effectively expressed, we should have pitied the civilization that would tolerate, and sorrow for the government unwilling or unable to mete out just punishment.

I have felt the deep current of popular resentment that the federal government has not sought to efface this blot from our national shield, that the federal government has been tolerant of the mockery of local inquiry and the failure of justice in Illinois. It is the regrettable truth that the federal government cannot act under the law. But the bestowal of the jurisdiction necessary to enable federal courts to act appropriately will open the way to punish barbarity and butchery at Herrin or elsewhere, no matter whose name or for what purpose the insufferable outrage is committed.

It is deplorable that there are or can be American communities where there are even citizens, not to speak of public officials, who believe mob warfare is admissible to cure any situation. It is terrorizing to know that such madness may be directed against men merely for choosing to accept lawful employment. I wish the federal government to be able to put an end to such crimes against civilization and punish those who sanction them.

In the works of patient conference and attempts at settlement, I have come to appraise another element in the engrossing industrial dispute of which it is only fair to take cognizance. It is in some degree responsible for the strikes and has hindered attempts at adjustment. I refer to the warfare on the unions of labor. The government has no sympathy or approval for this element of discord in the ranks of industry.

NOT EXPECTED TO BE IN CONFERENCE

conference. Whether the senate version of the tariff, or the house version of it shall triumph in the conference committee will depend upon the issue partly of a tug of war between the senate as a whole and the house as a whole, and partly on a tug of war between the personalities involved. The representatives of the senate in the conference will hold out strongly for the changes they have made. These changes number between 2,000 and 3,000, some of them are material. The most important one is the elimination in the senate bill of the "American valuation" plan which was an essential part of the house bill. On this point it is believed that in the conference Fordney, representing the house will hold out strongly for the "American valuation" plan and for the original house bill generally.

Fordney is a husky, hard boiled person, who is about to abandon public life on his own initiative and therefore has no reason to placate anybody. Also those forces in the house which will be represented in the conference committee are believed to be strongly of the opinion that some of the schedules in the senate bill are too high. Specifically, it is expected that there will be a determined effort on the part of the house conferees to reduce the rate on raw wool which at the time of its adoption in the senate caused so much commotion. The net result of all this is that it is not as easy to predict how many weeks the work of the conference will consume. If the republican party had an united leadership which could lay down the law to both the senate leaders and the house leaders the conference need not consume over two weeks. But under the circumstances it is easily possible for the conference to consume as much as two months. If the conference should consume several weeks that will bring about a situation in which the new bill might go on the statute books within three or four weeks of the time of the November election.

Some republican leaders believe this would be bad politics. They hold that if the work of the conference committee is prolonged much beyond the middle of September it will be the best policy to prolong it still further and not put the bill on the books until after the election. As for the democrats they don't care. They would rather use the tariff to win the 1924 election than to win the 1922 one.

THERE are few left-over foods with a greater value than potatoes. And there are few better ways to fix them than to make potato cakes.

A good suggestion for their preparation is to mash the potatoes thoroughly and then whip them into a batter with one or two eggs and fresh cream. Then fry in deep fat, until crisp, and serve hot. They make a splendid breakfast dish, and also work well with steaks and fresh meats.

Use Mrs. Tucker's Shortening for this and all your frying. You'll never know the ideal frying fat until you try mine—for it does not scorch with heat, or impart greasy flavors, or make fried foods soggy.

COTTON MARKETS

New York Cotton.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—There was a renewal of yesterday's buying buying movement in the cotton market this morning and a further excited advance in prices. Bullish news was evidently stimulated by the continued firmness of Liverpool, improving domestic labor conditions and continuation of unfavorable weather in the south. There was a good deal of realizing on the opening advance of 29 to 40 points but it was absorbed on very slight reactions and the market was very firm during the early trading on a broadening of trade and general demand. December contracts sold up to 22.20 with the general list showing net advances of 40 to 60 points before the end of the first hour.

After selling up to 22.22 for December, or 59 not higher, the market reacted under heavier realizing and there was probably some selling for a reaction on a belief that the advance had been over-rapid. December eased off to 21.97 under these offerings, or about 26 points from the best but trade became quiet at the decline and the midday market was steady around the 22 cent level. No change was reported in southern weather conditions and deterioration reports continued to reach here.

The market was quieter in mid-afternoon with December contracts easing off to 21.86 under increased hedge pressure making reactions of 35 to 40 points from the best.

The market closed barely steady.

New Orleans Cotton

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 18.—Much higher cables than due, continued dry weather in the western belt and further rains in the eastern belt, put the price of cotton to higher levels today. In the first hour trading positions gained 48 to 57 points, October rising to 21.85.

Rainy or threatening weather at a few points in the west and reports to brokers here indicating that interior spot markets were quiet had the effect of increasing the selling and in the trading up to 12:30 o'clock October sagged to 21.43 where the list stood only 3 to 25 points over yesterday's close, October displaying the most resistance to the decline.

The market closed barely steady at net decline of 3 to 12 points.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE

CHICAGO, Aug. 18.—Grain prices turned downward in the early dealings, fear of damage to the corn crop having been relieved by cooler weather and by showers in Nebraska, Iowa and Illinois. The wheat market was also bearishly influenced by the fact that Liverpool quotations failed to respond to yesterday's advance in America. Estimates were current too that the wheat crop in the three western Canadian provinces was 27,000,000 bushels larger than was indicated by the latest official figures. The opening which varied from yesterday's finish to half cent lower, with September $1.02½@1.02¾ and December $1.04@1.04¼, was followed by a material decline all around.

Breaking of the drouth and heat. Breaking of the drouth and heat oats. After opening ⅛c to ¼c lower, September 61¼c, the corn market continued to descend.

Oats started ¼c lower to a shade advance, September 31¼@31½c, and later held near the initial range.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened the provision market.

Sugar Market.

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Raw sugar quiet; no sales. Refined easier; fine granulated 6.75 to 7.00.

STOCKS AND FINANCIAL

NEW YORK, Aug. 18.—Conspicuous strength of industrials and specialties, many of which showed gains of large fractions to two points, featured the opening dealings today on the New York stock exchange. Rails were slightly irregular and relatively inactive, despite the declaration of President Stone of the railroad engineers that the strike must be settled in the meetings here. Allied Chemical & Northern Pacific each broke through to new peak prices in the first 15 minutes of trading. Chandler jumped two points and gains of a point or more were scored by Barnsdall A and B, Standard Oil of California, California Petroleum and Louisville & Nashville. United States Steel common opened ⅛ higher at 103⅞ and then rose to 103¾, a new high price for the year. Mexican Petroleum, Union Pacific and Chicago & Northern declined fractionally.

The RENT PROBLEM

Like most other problems needs but the application of a little common sense and stick-to-it-ness to solve it. The man who has been married a number of years and does not own his home has but himself to blame. This is straight talk, but we mean it. Any reputable citizen of this community may come to this institution and be informed how it will assist him from the renters class to the home owners. But how are you to know if you do not ask? In the past year we have helped sixty-five Wichita Falls citizens to do this very thing. We actively solicit funds from thrifty people to assist in meeting the housing situation here. You should be interested in this. Come to see us.

FIGURES SHOW WHY IT WAS PERTINENT TO CUT DOWN FORCE

CITY'S FINANCIAL CONDITION IS PLAINLY SEEN IN SUBMITTED REPORT.

ALL MONEY AVAILABLE HAS BEEN APPROPRIATED

Report Points Out That During 1919 Boom Department Had Chief and 10 Men.

"A little civic pride and an investigation of the true conditions in the city would have averted the little, ever growing rumor that the officials have turned Wichita Falls over to the mercy of the crooks and thieves said city officials Friday morning

The city's financial condition is plainly set forth in a report prepared by the officials and plainly shows on the face of the report just why the city's police force was cut down to the present size

The report points out that during the 1919 boom, when the city had a larger population than it has now, the entire department consisted of a chief and 10 men. The report also shows that every cent of the money available from all sources has been appropriated

On March 31, the end of the fiscal year of 1921 1922 the city funds showed an overdraft of $228,000, a bonded indebtedness of $2,764,000, and bills and notes payable of $44,000 The amount of money necessary to pay the interest and create a sinking fund for the bonded indebtedness amounts to $240,000

During the past fiscal year the operating expenses were $330,000, and if this average would have been kept up it would have required the following amounts to be raised for the present year

Overdraft $228 000
Bills payable, $44 000.
Interest and sinking, $240 000
Operating expense, $330,000.
Total, $842,000.

The report states that this total amount would be an absolutely impossible sum for the city to raise.

When the appropriations were made, it was plainly evident that the city would also face a million dollar loss in property valuations for tax purposes. Every economical measure had to be considered and for that reason the operating expenses were cut down in the appropriations to $247,774

The situation viewed from all angles demanded a severe cut in all departments, and at the end of June the mayor submitted his budget based on the acquiring of a $275,000 loan to spread the overdraft over a period of 10 years, cutting the operating expenses to approximately $18,000 a month.

The budget condensed is as follows

Operating expenses, $247,774.
Notes payable, $69,326.
Interest to be paid, $17,783.
Interest and sinking, $206,560.
Hospital, $62,500.
Sewer construction, $3,000.
Contingent fund, 8,000.
Sanitary reserve, $4,620.
Paving, $46,000.
Total, $650,838.
The funds available follow:
From taxes, $486,100.
Cash on hand and estimated revenues, $165,733.
Total, $650,838

During the months of April, May, June and July the operating expenditures amounted to $93,445, and the allowance as appropriated only permits an expenditure of $20,550, which shows that still more economy must be exercised to keep within the city's resources

The report states: "It is very evident that all the money available has been appropriated to the different departments and, according to the charter, we cannot spend money unless there has been an appropriation for some. It is also very evident that it would be very unwise and unbusinesslike to appropriate sums of money when there is no means or getting it."

In the report on the police department the report shows that the appropriation for the year is $38,143, and the amount spent in the last four months was $16,036, or over $4,000 a month.

During the 1919 boom when the department consisted of a chief and 10 men the monthly salaries amounted to $1,200.

A comparative statement of the number of cases in police court and fines collected was prepared and follows.

For months of April, May, June and July, 1921, there were 800 cases and the amount of fines collected, $7,675 14.

For the same period in 1922 the number of cases was 928 and the amount of fines collected, $8,660

In May, 1921, there were forty men on the police department with an aggregate salary of $5,566. In June, 1922, the department had been cut down to 29 men and the monthly salaries amounted to $3 597.

In pursuance of the entrenchment policy adopted for the ensuing year the force was cut down to 18 men on July 1, 1922, with a monthly salary of $2,555. This same number of men is now employed on the department

CALOMEL SALIVATES EVEN WHEN CAREFUL

Frescherous Drug can not be Trusted and Next Dose may Start Trouble

Calomel is dangerous. It may salivate you and make you suffer fearfully from soreness of gums, tenderness of jaws and teeth, swollen tongue, and excessive saliva dribbling from the mouth. Don't trust calomel. It is mercury; quicksilver.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you will take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great. No salts necessary. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and can not salivate.—Adv

TWO CASES CONSTITUTE ENTIRE DOCKET AT CITY COURT FRIDAY MORNING

Only two cases appeared on the docket Friday morning in the city court. One was passed over until Saturday morning after evidence was heard in the other, a negro was fined $10 for speeding.

The alleged speedster said he was employed by a local tire service station and that he was making a call on the hill Thursday noon when he was arrested.

"Stop on her" the man at bar said his boss told him as he left the place. He said he did step on it and then lamented the fact that now his boss wouldn't pay his fine if he was fined The prisoner also told that his sister had just fallen from a second story window in the flats and that he had just more trouble than he could bear. The judge however heard the motorcycle officer say "35 miles an hour" and as a result the $10 fine was affixed on the docket

COUPLE GET AWAY WITH $118 WORTH OF NEW CLOTHING

CHAUFFEUR OF A PROMINENT FAMILY HELD AS AN ACCOMPLICE.

REPRESENTED HIMSELF TO BE LOCAL ATTORNEY

Stated Over Telephone That Check Given in Payment Was Good and Vouched For It.

A local departmet store is the victim of a well laid plot put into execution Thursday evening shortly after six o'clock. As a result the department store holds a worthless $118 check and clothing and shoes representing this amount are gone

All the clerks from the store had gone and there only remained two porters and the man who waits for the two attedants and then locks the doors. The telephone rang at ten minutes after six and a man asked whether they could get a dress that was in the window. He advised the man at the store that the dress would be paid for and that no credit was desired.

So the man waited and soon the couple came. The dress was taken out of the display window and tried on. It fitted perfectly. Then she wanted a pair of shoes and they were fitted When all the purchases were made the man started to write a check

The clerk advised the man that he could not accept a check as he did not know him The customer waived the clerk to silence by stating that he would identify himself.

The customer told the clerk to call J. A. Kemp's residence as Mr. Kemp knew him well. The instruction was carried out but the party who answered the telephone advised the clerk that Mr Kemp was not in the city but that he was Charles I Francis and if he could be of any service he would be pleased to do so.

The clerk asked the man in the store if he knew Mr Francis and he said "Oh yes, quite well."

The man on the other end of the telephone told the clerk that he knew the man who had tendered the check well and that the check was alright So the transaction was closed and the couple left the store rejoicing

The clerk however grew suspicious and called Mr Francis at his home and learned that he had not been at Mr. Kemp's house. Immediately an investigation was made. The Henrietta bank on which the check was given advised the house that the check was no good

The man who answered the telephone at Mr. Kemp's residence is in jail. The couple is still at large

COMMITTEE TO AUSTIN IN BEHALF OF HIGHWAY

VERNON, TEXAS, Aug 18—R. H Coffee, J. C Hickerself and R D L. Killough will leave for Austin Saturday for the purpose of attempting to secure the placing of the highway between Vernon and Crowell in the seven per cent class as part of the organized effort being made to induce the designation of the Lee highway through this section.

The designation of the road from the Red river to Vernon recently as one of the seven per class has proved a decided encouragement to local workers. In the event the delegation to Austin is successful in its mission, the Lee highway, in the event it is designated through this section, will have a federal aided pike from the boundary line of Oklahoma to Roswell, N M. From Crowell to Roswell there stretches the well-known Three F highway.

BEATING 6 WEEK OLD BABY CHARGE AGAINST MAN HELD

A man is being held in the city jail, awaiting a transfer to the county charged with beating a six weeks old baby. The arrest was made Thursday night by city officers after a complaint had been made by neighbors.

According to the officers, neighbors told that this treatment to the baby has been going on for over a week and that the usual method pursued by the man held was to place a pillow over the little child's face and then whip it.

The arresting officers stated Friday morning that the infant's body was covered with black and blue marks. The man under arrest resides on Tenth street.

"YOUNG NIGGERS BIGGEST LIARS," SAYS OLD MAMMY

"Dese here young niggers am de bigges' liars that ever is!"

This was one of the many exclamations made in the justice of peace court Friday mroning by an old nigger mammy who came down to pay her daughter's fine The young negress was picked up Thursday night at a dance and charged with disturbing the peace. She plead guilty and the mammy paid the $12 30.

"Yes youse tole me you was all gwan to de church sociable and den you go down wid dat trash and dance de whole night. Wait till I gets you home. Youse gwan to eat your dinnah standin' up, I knows."

The nigger mammy told the officers that they weren't doing their duty if they didn't break up every nigger meeting, no matter what the purpose was at 11 o'clock every night She said that was late enough for any nigger to be out.
